250,000 Witness Outdoor Service In St. Peter's Square

By BENNET M. BOLTON
VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI, 262nd supreme pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church, was crowned Sunday night in a magnificent outdoor coronation ceremony before a quarter of a million spectators in St. Peter's Square.

At 8:30 p.m. a modern light-weight beehive crown—weighing just over two pounds—was placed on the head of the spiritual ruler of the world's half-billion Roman Catholics. It was the climax of a 2½-hour ceremony.

The service was rich in ancient pageantry and symbolism. But to the service Pope Paul brought, in an unusual nine-language speech, a reminder of the problems of the modern world.

He pledged to dedicate his reign to a search for world peace and Christian unity, the aims of his predecessor and friend, Pope John XXIII. Appealing for sacrifice by all men, he warned that the path to church unity was filled with obstacles.

At sunset the 65-year-old Pope, now in the ninth day of his reign, was carried into the square on a portable throne. A Sistine choir sang "Tu Es Petrus"—Thou Art Peter.

Altar, Throne Set Up

An altar and a stationary papal throne were set up in the square for the first outdoor papal coronation in this century. Recent coronations have been held in St. Peter's Basilica.

Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani placed the crown on the head of Pope Paul.

"Receive this tiara, adorned with three crowns, and know that you are the father of princes and kings, guide of the world, and vicar of Christ Jesus our Savior," he intoned.

The crown symbolized the Pope's temporal authority, and the magnificent coronation showed all the rich pageantry of the church.

But it was a ceremony that also emphasized humility.

Three times as Pope Paul was carried through the square on his portable throne, a strip of flax was burned before his eyes.

An attendant chanted in a loud voice in Latin: "Holy Father, thus passes the glory of the world."

It was a dramatic moment. Pope Paul, deeply moved, bowed his head as he listened to the repeated warning against personal concern for the pleasures of the world.

Millions Watch Via TV

The greatest audience ever to see a papal coronation watched the measured pace of the solemn procession of clergymen and heard trumpets herald the appearance of the spiritual ruler of the world's half-billion Catholics. Millions watched throughout Europe by a television hookup. The Telstar Relay satellite carried the ceremony through space to the United States.

Prominent in the crowd was a group of North Italian iron miners wearing white helmets. Pope Paul—Giovanni Battista Cardinal Montini, archbishop of Milan before his election—had once visited the miners in their pits.

About 2,800 invited guests—including special missions from 82 nations and nine international organizations—had special seats on PALERMO, Sicily (UPI) — An explosion Sunday killed seven Italian policemen in an ambush possibly set by the Mafia.

Police said the men apparently were lured into the deadly trap by an anonymous telephone tipster.

Italy Rebuffs France; Wants Britain In ECM

ROME (AP)—Premier Georges Pompidou of France conferred with Italian government leaders Sunday and apparently failed to swing Italy's new government to President Charles de Gaulle's view of thinking on the future of Europe.

Official sources said the talks on the eve of President Kennedy's arrival in Rome brought a reaffirmation by Premier Giovanni Leone of the Kennedy-backed position that negotiations must be resumed for Britain's entry into the European Common Market.

France has vetoed Britain's bid for membership in the prosperous trading bloc.

In another apparent rebuff to De Gaulle, officials reported that Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder of West Germany joined the Italians in reaffirming support of British Common Market membership and of "European unity on a democratic basis."

Schroeder has publicly backed Kennedy's policies for European unity.

Kennedy wants Britain in the Common Market to help solidify European unity and strengthen U.S.-European ties. On his visit to West Germany last week, Kennedy spoke out against De Gaulle's go-it-alone policy in the Western alliance.

The round of diplomatic activity in Rome was made possible by the coronation of Pope Paul VI. Pompidou and Schroeder head official delegations to the coronation.

AEC Reports Evidence Of Recent Russ A-Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission said Sunday there is evidence that the Soviet Union may have conducted nuclear tests of very low yield in recent weeks.

It did not say whether the tests were in the atmosphere, underground or in outer space, and stated the evidence "remains inconclusive."

But the indications were that if such tests were held they were conducted after President Kennedy's June 10 speech in which he halted any further American atmospheric tests so long as other nuclear powers did likewise.

An AEC spokesman said the phrase "very low yield" could be taken to mean explosions in the one-kiloton range—or the equivalent of 1,000 tons of TNT. This contrasts with the 20-kiloton force of the Hiroshima bomb which

Hotel Flies Old 22-Star U.S. Flag To Welcome JFK

BELLAGIO, Italy (AP) — An American flag with 22 stars, about a century and a half old, was hung out here Sunday to welcome President Kennedy on his first visit to Italy.

The flag, believed to be the oldest U.S. banner in Italy, was run up proudly by the Hotel du Parc, near Villa Serbelloni where Kennedy is making a one-night stopover between London and Rome.

The hotel owners say the flag apparently was made about 1820. It has been in the hotel's possession since 1850. But nobody here remembers who brought the old banner to Bellagio, or why.

U.S. May Slash A-Arms Output

NEW YORK (AP)—The administration is seriously considering the first substantial cutback in the production of atomic weapons since the nuclear buildup after World War II, the New York Times said Sunday.

A Washington dispatch reported: "Behind the current study is a belief that the United States, with an arsenal of tens of thousands of atomic weapons, has a sufficient and perhaps an excessive number of nuclear arms to meet its military needs."

The major fear concerning the multiplying number of warheads, the Times said, "is that a continuing profusion would only increase the chances of accidental explosion or unauthorized use of the weapons."

Tito Re-Elected

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Marshal Tito, 71, was re-elected president of Yugoslavia Sunday by unanimous vote of the Communist nation's five-house Parliament. Under Yugoslavia's new constitution, Tito's new term is without limit, meaning he can serve for life unless he decides to step aside.

'Paternalistic' Government Hit By Eisenhower

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower, speaking Sunday night on the eve of the three-day commemoration of the Battle of Gettysburg, struck at "paternalistic government" and called for sturdy self-reliance.

The former president recalled how Abraham Lincoln, in his address here four months after the battle, called on all Americans to be strong in their faith in freedom.

"For my part," Eisenhower said, "I feel a certain uneasiness when I think of some of the answers I would have to make to questions like these:

"Does self-government, for me, mean sturdy self-reliance—depending upon myself for all those things, tangible and intangible, that I am able, without governmental interference, to provide myself and my family?

"Or—would I rather take from a paternalistic government every possible immediate advantage it can give, even if I do not really need it?"

Cuban Raiders Taken Captive

MIAMI (UPI) — A boatload of anti-Castro exile raiders was captured by Cuban gunboats off the north Cuban coast early Sunday after a running sea fight, reliable Cuban exile sources reported here.

The number of captives was not known.

The raider launch was sunk by Communist gunfire. There were no immediate reports of casualties, but one of the raiders was known to be wounded.

One of the Communist gunboats was badly shot up and had to be towed in by a government tugboat after the firefight.

According to the report of the action, the Cuban coastal network was alerted at 11 p.m. Saturday night when "an unidentified boat" entered Cuban waters near the port of Caibarien in Las Villas Province. An intercept order was issued by the Cuban navy.

The raider boat was intercepted and engaged the gunboats in a cannon duel. The raiders leaped into the water when their boat was sunk and were picked up by the Communist launches.

Kennedy, Mac Still Divided On Atom Fleet

U.S., British Heads Agree On Urgency For Test Ban Pact

By ARTHUR GAVSHON
CHELWOOD GATE, England (AP) — President Kennedy and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan agreed Sunday on the urgency of a nuclear test ban pact with the Soviet Union. But they remained divided over the need for a nuclear fleet of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies.

A lightning U.S.-British summit parley which Kennedy—seemingly for old times' sake—fitted into his European tour, ended with the President's departure from Gatwick airport for Milan and a three-day visit to Italy.

Kennedy said at the airport that a great deal had been accomplished in the 24-hour talks at Birch Grove, Macmillan's home 35 miles south of London, because of "the long basis of understanding that exists between our two countries." He said the renewed test-ban effort had been their main endeavor.

"Quite A Hard Time"

Replying, Macmillan said: "We have had quite a hard time in talks and discussions throughout the evening, the night and this morning. I hope also you had a pleasant time."

They shook hands and Kennedy walked to his plane.

A communique said the talks ended with these results:

—Agreement that U.S. and British negotiating teams should go to Moscow with flexible orders for their meeting with the Russians July 15 on a nuclear test ban treaty.

—They agreed on further studies of other interested allies on the U.S. plan for a mixed-crews fleet of 25 Polar surface ships. But Macmillan insisted that the talks should not be taken as a commitment that Britain would eventually join the force.

—They approved a program of military aid to strengthen India against the threat of new Red Chinese attacks.

Laos Stand Reaffirmed

—They called on the Communists to abide by their 1962 pledges to respect the peace, unity and independence of neutral Laos.

—They promised to go on working closely together around the world in defense of their shared interests.

Spokesmen of the two leaders told newsmen that most of the 12-hour discussion was devoted to formulating a mandate which their negotiators will carry to Moscow.

W. Averell Harriman, U.S. special ambassador, and British Science Minister Lord Hailsham have been empowered to discuss other issues, including measures to check the spread of nuclear weapons, West Germany's place in allied nuclear strategy and the problem of Laos.

Cambridge Sets Racial Equality Ordinance Vote

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—Mayor Calvin W. Mowbray said Sunday night an equal accommodations ordinance will be placed before the Cambridge city council at its regular meeting Monday night.

The mayor made the announcement after an extraordinary Sunday night council session held in an apparent attempt to head off further demonstrations in this racially divided community.

He said the council also will vote on a proposal to amend the city charter to prohibit racial discrimination in places of public accommodation.

Negro leaders already have described such a plan as inadequate on grounds that it could be petitioned to a referendum and thereby doomed to failure. They had pressed for enactment of an ordinance, which would not be subject to referendum.

The council's decision to order that both a charter amendment and ordinance be drafted for a Monday night vote ended a week-long stalemate in efforts to settle the Cambridge racial dispute.

Brig. Gen. George M. Gelston, commander of National Guard troops stationed in the city for the last 16 days, said the step was "certainly in advance of what we've been doing here for the last couple of days."

"At least, they're talking," he said.

Twenty-four hours earlier Gov. J. Millard Tawes was said to have threatened to remove the troops unless the dispute were settled within 48 hours, and Negro leaders responded with an announcement that they would resume demonstrations July 4.

Greek Destroyers

PIRAEUS, Greece (AP)—Two former U.S. destroyers, the Brown and the Bradford, have been commissioned for service in the royal Greek navy.

Pistol Shot (Cap) Gives JFK Guard Bad Moment

FOREST ROW, England (AP)—A pistol sounded in the bushes. President Kennedy sat bolt upright in the back seat of his car.

From one side of the road in front of this village's Church of Our Lady of the Forest, a Secret Service man rushed to the bushes.

His face was tense. He peered inside with two uniformed British policemen at his shoulder.

The Secret Service man could hardly believe what he saw inside the bushes.

There, wearing a black cowboy hat, was Hugh Suteley, 8, a cap pistol in his right hand.

The Secret Service man did a slow burn and said: "Pretty tough on us, buster."

Hugh grinned and reloaded his cap pistol.

This little drama took place just across the road from the tiny Roman Catholic church where Kennedy attended Mass Sunday.

There were more policemen outside the church than there were parishioners inside, for all who wanted to attend could not find places.

Kennedy drove here from Birch Grove House, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's home at Chelwood Gate, 2½ miles away.

The Rev. Charles Dolman, 75, said he had changed his mind and decided to give a sermon.

With Kennedy sitting on a plain wooden chair in the fifth row, the priest said: "God will help you, Mr. President, in wielding the great powers you possess today."

"Good wishes for yourself your wife and your children—present and to come."

This referred to the third child the Kennedys are expecting.

East European Red Chieftains Meet In Berlin

BERLIN (AP)—East European Communist leaders assembled in East Berlin Sunday for a summit conference with Soviet Premier Khrushchev, presumably on Red China's demand for a militant offensive in the Cold War. But Romania boycotted the meeting.

Also absent—not surprisingly—was Albania, Red China's staunch ally in Eastern Europe.

Wladyslaw Gomulka of Poland and Todor Zhivkov of Bulgaria were the last of the Communist leaders to arrive. Khrushchev flew in Friday and was followed by President Antonin Novotny of Czechoslovakia and Janos Kadar of Hungary.

Ostensibly, the leaders gathered to celebrate the 70th birthday of East Germany's Communist boss, Walter Ulbricht.

But Red China's stepped-up feud with the Kremlin apparently prompted Khrushchev to use the occasion for a conference of Soviet satellite leaders.

Chinese and Soviet officials are scheduled to sit down in Moscow next Friday for the first of a series of meetings aimed at ironing out the ideological differences separating Moscow and Peking.

There has been speculation that the Moscow talks might never begin because of the feud, but Communist China has announced the makeup of its delegation, assuring that the talks will take place.

Khrushchev apparently felt that a motion of confidence from the Eastern European leaders might strengthen his hand against the Chinese.

Romania's boycott, however, may injure his strategy.

The tipoff that Romania would be boycotting the meeting came in a message of greetings to Ulbricht from Romanian party chief Gheorghe Gheorghiu-Dej. The message made it certain Romania would be absent.

There was no official explanation for Gheorghiu-Dej's decision.

At Dynamo Stadium, scene of Ulbricht's birthday festivities, a plain red flag flew in the place presumably set aside for Romania.

Romania was the only Soviet-bloc country to publish parts of a Red Chinese letter assailing Khrushchev's policy of peaceful coexistence with the West. The letter was barred from publication in the Soviet Union.

Blast Wrecks House But Negroes Escape

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Four Negro men escaped serious injury early Sunday when an explosion collapsed a two-family frame house in Jackson.

Detective Sgt. J. P. Emmons said a gas leak inside the house apparently triggered the blast. Charles Evers, brother of assassinated Negro leader Medgar Evers, said he thought a bomb caused the damage.

The pre-dawn blast blew out one whole wall intact. The house's roof and most of its other walls toppled.

Leon Williams, one of four sleeping occupants, received superficial injuries. No one else was hurt.

Quadruplet Girls Born In Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Quadruplet girls were born Sunday to a 19-year-old mother of one other child at Michael Reese Hospital.

Hospital officials said Mrs. Bernard Harris and her daughters were in good condition.

All four babies, each of which weighed about four pounds, were born within 10 minutes. The infants were moved to the hospital premature nursery.

Touring JFK Spends Night At Lake Villa

Kennedy Resting At Resort; Flies To Rome Today

By JAMES LONG
BELLAGIO, Italy (AP)—President Kennedy arrived in this Alpine foothill resort Sunday for a night of secluded rest before flying on to Rome for meetings with leaders of Italy's shaky new government and the Roman Catholic world's new Pope, Paul VI.

A minimum of fanfare accompanied Kennedy's arrival for a three-day visit to Italy, the fourth nation on his European tour. There were no speeches at Milan's Malpensa Airport after the flight from Britain, but he waved to a crowd of 3,000 cheering Italians and told them happily, in Italian and English: "Grazie, Grazie—thank you, thank you."

He then boarded a helicopter and flew to this resort on the shore of Lake Como.

In the evening Kennedy came out of his villa and went for a 10-minute automobile trip through Bellagio to the lake-shore promenade for a quick look at the town and the lake.

Unannounced Trip

The trip had been unannounced and was unexpected. Few tourists or townsfolk paid any attention. They did not realize that the President was in the car.

Kennedy was smiling and showed no signs of weariness from his visits to Bonn, Berlin and his family's native Ireland, and his talks in England with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Ahead of him, in the next three days, were talks in Rome with Premier Giovanni Leone and President Antonio Segni of Italy and a historic meeting of the first American Roman Catholic President with a Pope. Kennedy also will visit the Southern European headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Naples before flying back to the United States Wednesday.

Kennedy's meeting with Macmillan Saturday night and Sunday morning resulted in agreement on the urgency on a nuclear test ban pact with the Soviet Union, hopefully to come about at the U.S.-British-Soviet test-ban talks opening in Moscow July 15.

No Accord On Nuclear Fleet

However, Macmillan refused to commit Britain to a nuclear fleet for NATO, agreeing only on further studies with other interested allies on the U.S. plan for a mixed-crews fleet of 25 Polar surface ships.

The proposed NATO fleet also will be a topic of Kennedy's discussions with Italian leaders, but little is expected to come from the talks because Leone's minority government is given small chance of lasting much beyond Kennedy's visit.

However, Leone's government apparently was standing fast against French efforts to line up Italy with French President Charles de Gaulle's plans for a Europe independent of the United States and Britain.

A communique said the talks ended with these results: —Agreement that U.S. and British negotiating teams should go to Moscow with flexible orders for their meeting with the Russians July 15 on a nuclear test ban treaty. —They agreed on further studies with other interested allies on the U.S. plan for a mixed-crews fleet of 25 Polaris surface ships. But Macmillan insisted that the talks should not be taken as a commitment that Britain would eventually join the force. —They approved a program of military aid to strengthen India against the threat of new Red Chinese attacks. —They called on the Communist nations to abide by their 1962 pledges to respect the peace, unity and independence of neutral Laos. —They promised to go on working closely together around the world in defense of their shared interests. Spokesmen of the two leaders told newsmen that most of the 12-hour discussion was devoted to formulating a mandate which their negotiators will carry to Moscow. W. Averell Harriman, U.S. special ambassador, and British Science Minister Lord Hailsham have been empowered to discuss other issues, including measures to check the spread of nuclear weapons, West Germany's place in allied nuclear strategy and the problem of Laos.

Cambridge Sets Racial Equality Ordinance Vote

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—Mayor Calvin W. Mowbray said Sunday night an equal accommodations ordinance will be placed before the Cambridge city council at its regular meeting Monday night. The mayor made the announcement after an extraordinary Sunday night council session held in an apparent attempt to head off further demonstrations in this racially divided community. He said the council also will vote on a proposal to amend the city charter to prohibit racial discrimination in places of public accommodation. Negro leaders already have described such a plan as inadequate on grounds that it could be petitioned to a referendum and thereby doomed to failure. They had pressed for enactment of an ordinance, which would not be subject to referendum. The council's decision to order that both a charter amendment and ordinance be drafted for a Monday night vote ended a week-long stalemate in efforts to settle the Cambridge racial dispute. Brig. Gen. George M. Gelston, commander of National Guard troops stationed in the city for the last 16 days, said the step was "certainly in advance of what we've been doing here for the last couple of days." "At least, they're talking," he said. Twenty-four hours earlier Gov. J. Millard Taves was said to have threatened to remove the troops unless the dispute were settled within 48 hours, and Negro leaders responded with an announcement that they would resume demonstrations July 4.

Pistol Shot (Cap) Gives JFK Guard Bad Moment

FOREST ROW, England (AP)—A pistol sounded in the bushes. President Kennedy sat bolt upright in the back seat of his car. From one side of the road in front of this village's Church of Our Lady of the Forest, a Secret Service man rushed to the bushes. His face was tense. He peered inside with two uniformed British policemen at his shoulder. The Secret Service man could hardly believe what he saw inside the bushes. There, wearing a black cowboy hat, was Hugh Suteley, 8, a cap pistol in his right hand. The Secret Service man did a slow burn and said: "Pretty tough on us, buster." Hugh grinned and reloaded his cap pistol. This little drama took place just across the road from the tiny Roman Catholic church where Kennedy attended Mass Sunday. There were more policemen outside the church than there were parishioners inside, for all who wanted to attend could not find places. Kennedy drove here from Birch Grove House, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's home at Chelwood Gate, 2½ miles away. The Rev. Charles Dolman, 75, said he had changed his mind and decided to give a sermon. With Kennedy sitting on a plain wooden chair in the fifth row, the priest said: "God will help you, Mr. President, in wielding the great powers you possess today. "Good wishes for yourself your wife and your children—present and to come." This referred to the third child the Kennedys are expecting.

Touring JFK Spends Night At Lake Villa

Kennedy Resting At Resort; Flies To Rome Today

By JAMES LONG
BELLAGIO, Italy (AP)—President Kennedy arrived in this Alpine foothill resort Sunday for a night of secluded rest before flying on to Rome for meetings with leaders of Italy's shaky new government and the Roman Catholic world's new Pope, Paul VI. A minimum of fanfare accompanied Kennedy's arrival for a three-day visit to Italy, the fourth nation on his European tour. There were no speeches at Milan's Malpensa Airport after the flight from Britain, but he waved to a crowd of 3,000 cheering Italians and told them happily, in Italian and English: "Grazie, Grazie—thank you, thank you." He then boarded a helicopter and flew to this resort on the shore of Lake Como. In the evening Kennedy came out of his villa and went for a 10-minute automobile trip through Bellagio to the lake-shore promenade for a quick look at the town and the lake. Unannounced Trip The trip had been unannounced and was unexpected. Few tourists or townsfolk paid any attention. They did not realize that the President was in the car. Kennedy was smiling and showed no signs of weariness from his visits to Bonn, Berlin and his family's native Ireland, and his talks in England with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Ahead of him, in the next three days, were talks in Rome with Premier Giovanni Leone and President Antonio Segni of Italy and a historic meeting of the first American Roman Catholic President with a Pope. Kennedy also will visit the Southern European headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Naples before flying back to the United States Wednesday. Kennedy's meeting with Macmillan Saturday night and Sunday morning resulted in agreement on the urgency on a nuclear test ban pact with the Soviet Union, hopefully to come about at the U.S.-British-Soviet test-ban talks opening in Moscow July 15. No Accord On Nuclear Fleet However, Macmillan refused to commit Britain to a nuclear fleet for NATO, agreeing only on further studies with other interested allies on the U.S. plan for a mixed-crews fleet of 25 Polaris surface ships. The proposed NATO fleet also will be a topic of Kennedy's discussions with Italian leaders, but little is expected to come from the talks because Leone's minority government is given small chance of lasting much beyond Kennedy's visit. However, Leone's government apparently was standing fast against French efforts to line up Italy with French President Charles de Gaulle's plans for a Europe independent of the United States and Britain.

Rights Bill Timetable Defended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deputy Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach said Sunday disappointingly slow local progress, plus the impact of demonstrations, altered the administration's timetable on civil rights legislation.

"Whenever they can be worked out locally in the right way," he said in referring to racial discrimination in voting, schools and public accommodations, "that's the best and most lasting way of doing it."

But he said progress has been disappointing and obviously not fast enough "to satisfy the demands of the Negroes—demands with which I am personally in complete sympathy."

Meanwhile, New York's two Republican senators — Kenneth B. Keating and Jacob K. Javits — both defended Negroes' right to demonstrate peaceably in Washington in support of the pending legislative program.

Both senators said Southern filibusters are merely trying to enforce their will through minority demonstrations. They called them "stand-in" and "sit-in" demonstrations. Katzenbach's comments were made when Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., asked why President Kennedy had waited nearly 2½ years after taking office before submitting the 7-point civil rights bill to Congress.

"Was your hand forced by the demonstrations, or were there other reasons why you felt that you had to wait?" asked Scott, who joined with Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., in interviewing Katzenbach on a taped television and radio program for Pennsylvania stations.

Katzenbach conceded that since President Kennedy offered his

Trieste Forced To Halt Search; Faces Overhaul

ABOARD THE USS FORT SNELLING (UPI) — The bathyscaphe Trieste, crippled by an equipment malfunction, on a dive to the bottom of the Atlantic, surfaced and prepared to return to port Sunday without finding the nuclear submarine Thresher.

Trieste popped to the surface four hours and 45 minutes after submerging on her fifth descent to the ocean floor. The Navy said the bathyscaphe experienced a gyrocompass failure and was forced to return to the surface an hour and 15 minutes ahead of schedule. The dive was described as unsuccessful.

Trieste was to begin a long voyage back to Boston Sunday night, towed by the salvage ship USS Preserver, to undergo an extensive overhaul. The trip was expected to take three to four days.

Silver Spring Youth Killed In Car Crash

HYATTSVILLE, Md. (AP) — Bertel Conrad Johnson, 20, of Silver Spring, was killed early Sunday in an auto collision at the intersection of Kenilworth Ave. and Greenbelt Road.

Barbara Hopewood, 19, of Baltimore, a passenger in Johnson's car, was taken to Prince Georges County Hospital with undetermined injuries.

Samuel Whetzel, 32, of Silver Spring, the driver of the second car, was charged with manslaughter by auto.

Goldwater's Gain Worries GOP Liberals

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The scorching early pace set by Sen. Barry M. Goldwater of Arizona in the 1964 Republican presidential scramble is giving his party's liberals some panicky momnets.

While it is axiomatic in politics to say that the man who gets too far out too soon may find himself winded in the stretch, party members who think Goldwater would be easy prey for President Kennedy are beginning to have doubts they can head him off.

Goldwater seems to have forged ahead of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller among the unannounced candidates since the New Yorker's marriage to a divorcee with four children.

While Rockefeller's friends say he is just as politically available as he ever was, he has been unable to hold the support of the big state delegations that were gravitating toward him as the man who looked like the best bet to beat Kennedy.

Whether Rockefeller can make a comeback apparently will depend on developments in the next few months. The suspicion is growing in some party quarters that he might decide to seek another term in Albany and, if given it, to wait until 1968.

It is significant at this point, in any event, that Rockefeller does not figure in liberal efforts to meld a stop-Goldwater movement.

But the anti-Goldwater camp has not been able to turn up in its frantic search a well-known national figure around whom to rally. The Eastern Republican liberals, who have controlled every modern party convention, well know they can't beat somebody with nobody.

There has been a recent effort on their part to build up Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania. But as a prospective "favorite son," Scranton has said he isn't interested in stopping anybody.

The liberals seem to regard Gov. George Romney of Michigan with suspicion. Some say they are afraid he might turn out to be about as conservative as Goldwater.

The sum total of liberal efforts have added up thus far to a shaky sort of holding operation in which Rockefeller would be counted on to hold the New York delegation and favorite sons would be expected to siphon off enough votes to prevent any convention stampede for Goldwater.

Little Girl Locked In Box By Retarded Boys Dies

RENOVO, Pa. (AP) — Three brothers, each with a speech defect and a little mentally retarded, locked a 6-year-old girl in a metal-lined wooden box—leaving her food, comic books and a lantern—so she wouldn't impede their runaway from a foster home, police reported Sunday.

But holes the boys had drilled in the sides of the box didn't cut all the way through, and Dorothy Mae Sunderlin suffocated.

State Police Sgt. Joseph Heffron said the death was "a tragedy that shouldn't have happened."

He filed a formal Juvenile Court petition against Philip Bilby, 15; Robert, 14, and Terry, 9, and said it would be up to the district attorney whether any criminal action would be pursued.

Heffron said the boys liked the little girl, didn't molest her, and did everything possible to make her comfortable when they put her, possibly unprotestingly, into the box.

When caught, Heffron said, "They told me they would show where Mazie was—that's what they called her—and would ask her to push out the key and they'd unlock it."

The procession was full of church pageantry. Swiss Guards in striped pantaloons of orange, red and blue escorted the Pope. Attendants carried fans of bright ostrich feathers on each side of the pontiff.

The procession moved from the Apostolic Palace across the square to the front of the basilica. The Pope's baldachino—or canopy—was placed before the main entrance of the basilica.

Flanking the altar and the throne were the seats for diplomats and the special missions.

Among the distinguished visitors were a king—Baudouin of Belgium—and three presidents, Joao Goulart of Brazil, Eamon de Valera of Ireland and Antonio Segni of Italy. The United States sent Chief Justice Earl Warren. France sent Premier Georges Pompidou. Other nations dispatched high-level envoys.

Soviet-Chinese Division Widens

TOKYO (AP) — Red China acknowledged Monday a widening of its split with the Kremlin but said it still intended to send a delegation to Moscow to discuss their clashing views on world communism's Cold War policy. The Chinese said they will hew to their tough line.

A Chinese Communist party statement charged that the Soviet expulsion of five Chinese from Russia in a recent flareup of the feud constituted "a serious step in further worsening Chinese-Soviet relations and in manufacturing a split in the international Communist movement."

The Chinese statement, broadcast by the New China News Agency, also said the Soviet action against the Chinese—three embassy staff members, a student and an institute official—extended "the ideological differences between the two parties to the sphere of state relations."

By this the Chinese meant they believed the rift had now blossomed into a feud between governments rather than a party quarrel.

More Petitions Are Filed For Race Track Bill Vote

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Additional $417.15 for printing and $430 for petitions were filed Sunday to notary public fees. Each petition force a referendum on Maryland's race track consolidation bill, although the Secretary of State has already ruled they are worthless.

The petitions, delivered to the secretary's office by Mrs. Rose Peck of Baltimore and James H. Pollack, northwest Baltimore politician, set the stage for a court battle which will give the final answer.

Also scheduled to be filed before a Sunday midnight deadline were further petitions on the public accommodations law, which also appears headed for a court test.

Secretary of State Lloyd L. Simpkins said the petitions on both bills would be disregarded by his office unless he is otherwise directed by the courts.

He said the referendum drive against the race track bill failed because petitions filed before June 1 did not contain an expense report required by law.

Sen. Paul A. Dorf, D-Balto, 5th, Pollack's son-in-law and leader of the drive, said the expense statement was not due until the petitions were completed.

This is the issue the courts will have to determine. There has been no question about the number of signatures on the racing bill, which would close three Maryland tracks and transfer their days to four others.

The 14,179 additional names filed by the Pollack forces Sunday brought to 35,597 the total they obtained to put the bill on referendum. Only 23,080 valid signatures were required, with half filed by June 1 and the remainder before July 1.

Simpkins said the drive against the public accommodations law had failed because it did not have the 11,540 valid signatures required by June 1. He rejected 1,410 signatures as failing to contain the full information required by law.

The controversial expense statement on the racing bill was filed by Mrs. Peck with Sunday's petitions.

She listed contributions of $417.15 from Dorf and $430 from Pollack and reported expenses of $178.75.

Maryland Briefs

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — Maryland and District of Columbia broadcasters have gone on record against "the dangerous implications" of Federal Communications Commission proposals to regulate advertising practices on the air.

The action came Saturday as the Maryland - D.C. Broadcasters Association wound up a three-day meeting in Ocean City.

The FCC has taken steps to limit the amount of air time used for commercials and to prevent commercials from being broadcast more loudly than regular programming.

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — Union officials said Sunday they would ask the Mack Trucks Co. to reinstate four workers discharged for participating in an unauthorized strike.

Reno Powell Jr., president of United Auto Workers local 171, said management would also be asked to drop disciplinary action against 10 others. A meeting is scheduled Monday.

Production and maintenance workers at the company's Hagerstown plant walked off their jobs June 21 in a dispute over vacation plans.

Powell said striking workers would return to their jobs beginning with the first shift late Sunday night.

The first motto placed on a coin by the United States was "Mind Your Business," on the 1787 cent.

Utah Legislator Sees Goldwater As GOP Choice

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York has been "dumped" by some party leaders in favor of Sen. Barry Goldwater for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination, says Rep. Lawrence Burton, R-Utah.

"It looks to me like he is the man who's going to take on John Kennedy in '64," said Burton in appraising Goldwater's prospects for the nomination.

Burton said in an interview he is a former Rockefeller backer who has now lined up behind Goldwater.

In Ocean City to address the summer convention of the Trial Magistrates Association of Maryland, Burton said Saturday that recent polls have shown a marked decline in Rockefeller's chances for the nomination.

"There have been powerful people who have dumped him," he said.

Joseph D. Tydings, U.S. attorney for Maryland, said in a speech to the association that legal gambling receipts are being used by racketeers to finance their operations in narcotics and prostitution.

He urged Maryland prosecutors to share with him any information they have on lottery operations, especially those with out-of-state links.

Ralph C. Boyd of Anne Arundel County was installed as president of the association as it wound up its meeting.

Also installed were F. Allen Weatherholt, Allegany County, first vice president; I. Sewell Landin, Baltimore, second vice president; Stanley Paul, Baltimore, executive secretary; Charles J. Kelly, Harford County, recording secretary; and Vito Marino, Baltimore County, treasurer.

Beall, Citing Government Waste, Lists Examples

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Glenn Beall, R-Md., said Sunday waste runs rampant in Washington. He listed "some of the things you are paying for."

U. S. military installations in Japan where 1,800 excess personnel, all Japanese, are employed at an annual waste of $2.7 million.

Rubber tracks for tanks, allowed to deteriorate, $5 million.

103 ten-ton crane shovels, never used, $2 million.

A private train for an ambassador, $119,000.

Office furnishings for U.S. travel they have on lottery operations, especially those with out-of-state links.

Ralph C. Boyd of Anne Arundel County was installed as president of the association as it wound up its meeting.

Also installed were F. Allen Weatherholt, Allegany County, first vice president; I. Sewell Landin, Baltimore, second vice president; Stanley Paul, Baltimore, executive secretary; Charles J. Kelly, Harford County, recording secretary; and Vito Marino, Baltimore County, treasurer.

As well as its five-mile beach, New York's Coney Island features more than 350 business and amusement places, side-shows, rides and penny arcades.

115,000 Negroes Join Voter Lists

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — An 11-state drive conducted by the nation's major civil rights organizations added more than 115,000 Negroes to Southern voter registration lists in the first year of operation, the project's director said Sunday.

The figures were announced for the first time by Wiley A. Branton, executive director of the Voter Education Project (VEP) of the Southern Regional Council (SRC), following his appearance here before the annual convention of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

Branton said the task had been accomplished by hundreds of field workers "despite apathy on the part of many Southern Negroes, intimidation from segregationists and a lack of full cooperation from the federal government."

Another 25,000 Negroes who would have been purged from registration lists retained their voting rights through the project's efforts, Branton said, while "uncounted thousands" of Negroes registered for the first time without the aid of project workers.

D.C.-Baltimore Merger Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The merging of metropolitan Washington and Baltimore into an urban "colossus" with a 1980 population of 6.1 million was foreseen Saturday by land economist Jerome P. Pickard.

The merger has already started, Pickard asserted in an interview published in the Washington Post.

Pickard, research director for the Urban Land Institute, predicted that the net population growth would occur entirely in the county areas outside the central cities of Washington and Baltimore.

The two metropolitan areas, now covering 3,637 square miles of land area, will have expanded by 1980, he said, to 5,060 square miles and will overlap each other along the Montgomery-Howard and Anne Arundel-Prince Georges county lines.

Pickard predicted 1980 population in the District of Columbia, Baltimore city and Arlington County, Virginia, as the same or slightly less than in 1960. But he said the suburban county areas would add another 2.2 million to the schedule of study and recreation present two million population.

More Petitions Are Filed For Race Track Bill Vote

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Additional petitions were filed Sunday for a referendum on Maryland's race track consolidation bill, although the Secretary of State has already ruled they are worthless.

The petitions, delivered to the secretary's office by Mrs. Rose Peck of Baltimore and James H. Pollack, northwest Baltimore political leader, set the stage for a court battle which will give the final answer.

Also scheduled to be filed before a Sunday midnight deadline were further petitions on the public accommodations law, which also appears headed for a court test.

Secretary of State Lloyd L. Simpkins said the petitions on both bills would be disregarded by his office unless he is otherwise directed by the courts.

He said the referendum drive against the race track bill failed because petitions filed before June 1 did not contain an expense report required by law.

Sen. Paul A. Dorf, D-Balto, 5th, Pollack's son-in-law and leader of the drive, said the expense statement was not due until the petitions were completed.

This is the issue the courts will have to determine. There has been no question about the number of signatures on the racing bill, which would close three Maryland tracks and transfer their days to four others.

The 14,179 additional names filed by the Pollack forces Sunday brought to 35,597 the total they obtained to put the bill on referendum. Only 23,080 valid signatures were required, with half filed by June 1 and the remainder before July 1.

Simpkins said the drive against the public accommodations law had failed because it did not have the 11,540 valid signatures required by June 1. He rejected 1,410 signatures as failing to contain the full information required by law.

The controversial expense statement on the racing bill was filed by Mrs. Peck with Sunday's petitions.

She listed contributions of $417.15 from Dorf and $430 from Pollack and reported expenses of $417.15 for printing and $430 for notary public fees. Each petition force a referendum on Maryland's race track consolidation bill, although the Secretary of State has already ruled they are worthless.

The petitions were ready for filing last Friday but Pollack held them up until addresses of the notaries could be obtained for listing on the expense statement.

He said some 20 to 30 hours of telephoning and checking was necessary to get the required information.

Maryland Briefs

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — Maryland and District of Columbia broadcasters have gone on record against "the dangerous implications" of Federal Communications Commission proposals to regulate advertising practices on the air.

The action came Saturday as the Maryland - D.C. Broadcasters Association wound up a three-day meeting in Ocean City.

The FCC has taken steps to limit the amount of air time used for commercials and to prevent commercials from being broadcast more loudly than regular programming.

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — Union officials said Sunday they would ask the Mack Trucks Co. to reinstate four workers discharged for participating in an unauthorized strike.

Reno Powell Jr. president of United Auto Workers local 171, said management would also be asked to drop disciplinary action against 10 others. A meeting is scheduled Monday.

Production and maintenance workers at the company's Hagerstown plant walked off their jobs June 21 in a dispute over vacation plans.

Powell said striking workers would return to their jobs beginning with the first shift late Sunday night.

The first motto placed on a coin by the United States was "Mind Your Business," on the back and reported expenses of

Utah Legislator Sees Goldwater As GOP Choice

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York has been "dumped" by some party leaders in favor of Sen. Barry Goldwater for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination, says Rep. Lawrence Burton, R-Utah.

"It looks to me like he is the man who's going to take on John Kennedy in '64," said Burton in appraising Goldwater's prospects for the nomination.

Burton said in an interview he is a former Rockefeller backer who has now lined up behind Goldwater.

In Ocean City to address the summer convention of the Trial Magistrates Association of Maryland, Burton said Saturday that recent polls have shown a marked decline in Rockefeller's chances for the nomination.

"There have been powerful people who have dumped him," he said.

Joseph D. Tydings, U.S. attorney for Maryland, said in a speech to the association that illegal gambling receipts are being used by racketeers to finance their operations in narcotics and prostitution.

He urged Maryland prosecutors to share with him any information they have on lottery operations, especially those with out-of-state links.

Ralph C. Boyd of Anne Arundel County was installed as president of the association as it wound up its meeting.

Also installed were F. Allen Weatherholt, Allegany County, first vice president; I. Sewell Lamdin, Baltimore, second vice president; Stanley Paul, Baltimore, executive secretary; Charles J. Kelly, Harford County, recording secretary, and Vito Marino, Baltimore County, treasurer.

Beall, Citing Government Waste, Lists Examples

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., said Sunday waste runs rampant in Washington. He listed "some of the things you are paying for":

U. S. military installations in Japan where 1,800 excess personnel, all Japanese, are employed at an annual waste of $2.7 million.

Rubber tracks for tanks, allowed to deteriorate, $5 million.

103 ten-ton crane shovels, never used, $2 million.

A private train for an ambassador, $119,000.

Office furnishings for U.S. travel they have on lottery operations, especially those with out-of-state links.

Ralph C. Boyd of Anne Arundel County was installed as president of the association as it wound up its meeting.

Also installed were F. Allen Weatherholt, Allegany County, first vice president; I. Sewell Lamdin, Baltimore, second vice president; Stanley Paul, Baltimore, executive secretary; Charles J. Kelly, Harford County, recording secretary, and Vito Marino, Baltimore County, treasurer.

Hominy Grits To Be Served At Gettysburg

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—In a historic first, hominy grits are on the cuisine at Gettysburg—giving the South a gastronomic victory here where it didn't fare so well in battle.

The management of the Hotel Gettysburg, known for its good fare, confided to a newsman that it has started cooking grits for Southern governors and others from Dixie arriving here for the centennial commemoration of the Battle of Gettysburg.

The idea is to make the folks from Dixie feel at home in a town where they were not exactly comfortable 100 years ago.

For example, when Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina sits down to breakfast Monday morning the management intends to greet him with a flourish. A large bowl of steaming grits will be plopped down in front of him even before he takes his first sip of coffee.

Fertilizers Can Kill Fish In Farm Ponds

The Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission urges farmers to be careful in using insecticides, herbicides and fertilizers near farm ponds.

Several recent reports of fish kills have been received by the fisheries division. Technicians said agricultural chemicals applied in the drainage of the pond could reach the water by irrigation runoff or natural rain runoff. Since most pesticides remain in the soil for a number of years, some of the effects on the fish, the commissioner said, could possibly be delayed.

Most agricultural chemicals available today for weed and insect control also are very dangerous to humans if used improperly.

Any farmer noticing large numbers of fish killed in a pond or creek, especially if chemicals have been applied to land in the immediate vicinity, is asked to notify a representative of the Game and Inland Fish Commission or the Water Pollution Control Commission.

Employment Security Offices To Close

Hominy Grits To Be Served At Gettysburg

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—In a historic first, hominy grits are on the cuisine at Gettysburg—giving the South a gastronomic victory here where it didn't fare so well in battle.

The management of the Hotel Gettysburg, known for its good fare, confided to a newsmen that it has started cooking grits for Southern governors and others from Dixie arriving here for the centennial commemoration of the Battle of Gettysburg.

The idea is to make the folks from Dixie feel at home in a town where they were not exactly comfortable 100 years ago.

For example, when Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina sits down to breakfast Monday morning, the management intends to greet him with a flourish. A large bowl of steaming grits will be plopped down in front of him even before he takes his first sip of coffee.

Fertilizers Can Kill Fish In Farm Ponds

The Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission urges farmers to be careful in using insecticides, herbicides and fertilizers near farm ponds.

Several recent reports of fish kills have been received by the fisheries division. Technicians said agricultural chemicals applied in the drainage of the pond could reach the water by irrigation runoff or natural rain runoff. Since most pesticides remain in the soil for a number of years, some of the effects on the fish, the commissioner said, could possibly be delayed.

Most agricultural chemicals available today for weed and insect control also are very dangerous to humans if used improperly.

Any farmer noticing large numbers of fish killed in a pond or creek, especially if chemicals have been applied to land in the immediate vicinity, is asked to notify a representative of the Game and Inland Fish Commission or the Water Pollution Control Commission.

Appointment Made

Commission Will Probe Stock Market Operation

By STERLING F. GREEN
AP Business Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The stock market, trying hard to please after getting some bad marks in department, will receive its second report card soon from the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The disclosures won't jolt today's robust market into a sinking spell, well-posted sources said, but they may strain the remarkable ability which now prevails between the probers and the probed.

That's because this second bulky installment of SEC's 20-month investigation, broadest in the history of market regulation, will bore into the very heart of the securities industry, the major stock exchanges.

SEC's painstaking and scholarly investigating team will appraise critically the performance of exchange managements in protecting from fraud or deception the 17 million investors who buy, sell and own shares in American industry.

It will have high praise for many self-policing steps already taken voluntarily. But it is expected to point also to loopholes which it believes need plugging in operations of Wall Street's professionals — floor traders, specialists, "insiders" in brokerage houses and to analyze their trading operations before, during and after last year's frightening market crash.

The first installment—five long chapters issued April 3—reported some "grave abuses" but no pervading taint of dishonesty in the market. Reassuringly, most of its targets for criticism were found in the inconspicuous byways of Wall Street. The market rose.

Even so, installment No. 1 turned up enough slackness and shenanigans to support an SEC request to Congress for the most sweeping overhaul of the securities laws in their 30-year history. The Senate is working on them.

More legislation, plus still more rigorous self-regulation, may be recommended in the next four chapters of the report due this month. But SEC won't ask Congress to act on any additional bills this year.

The earlier SEC proposals have, moreover, been endorsed by the top men and organizations in the securities industry with a unanimity seldom shown on questions of federal regulation.

A crackdown on the disreputable minority would benefit everybody, the industry agrees. SEC in return has backpedaled the big exchanges and the broker-dealer groups for their "tremendous" cooperation and the housecleaning they have undertaken.

The president of the New York Stock Exchange, Keith Funston, helped make the pending legislation almost noncontroversial — and a fair bet for enactment this year—by telling the Senate Banking Committee:

"This bill would provide for closing major gaps in disclosure and self-regulation, and in the SEC's disciplinary authority — all of which would be beneficial to the economy and the public." SEC gives much of the credit for the calm of the market and the investing public to the factual, fair and unsensational technique of the 35-man study group—SEC even avoids the word "investigator"—assembled under chief investigator Milton H. Cohen, Chicago attorney.

Cohen and four picked squad captains — attorney Richard H. Paul of New York, economist Sidney Martin Robbins of Columbia University, attorney Herbert G. Schick of Philadelphia, and Ralph S. Saul, the only SEC official in the group—have worked without fanfare.

There was every expectation, therefore, that the second installment of the report—and the third and last, some time later in the year—would be free of advance leaks and unsettling rumors, and devoid of scare words or sweeping generalizations that might undermine investor confidence.

Whether the aura of good feeling will survive the next massive installment — four long chapters, loose-bound and weighing around 10 pounds—may depend on what the SEC investigators have to say about such touchy matters as:

—Alleged laxity of the "Amex"—the American Stock Exchange, New York—in failing to detect and nip some sensational 1961 price-rigging. Under new leadership, the Amex has made great changes. Whether SEC considers them sufficient remains to be revealed.

—Some suspected failures of the "Big Board"—the New York Stock Exchange — to enforce its own rules and standards on erring members.

—A critical scrutiny of the odd-lots market, the vast volume of trading done in lots of fewer than 100 shares. Some critics charge that present practices result in unfairly heavy commission charges against small investors.

—A long-debated proposal that "floor trading" be curbed. Floor traders are exchange members who speculate with their own funds; they are supposed to contribute price stability by buying when others sell and vice versa. The Amex inquiry led to suspicion that the reverse might be true.

—A look-see into the role played by stock specialists. These are exchange members who are appointed by the exchange to conduct the daily auctions in specified securities. They are in effect officers of the exchange, obligated to buy and sell for their own accounts to assure orderly trading.

The SEC charged that misuse of this trust by two Amex specialists, Jerry Re and his son Gerard Re, cost investors millions while enriching the Res. The father-son team was expelled by Amex. They are now facing fraud charges.

—An appraisal of the market forces which contributed to the "Black Monday" collapse on May 28, 1962.

—An inquiry into operations of the dozen or so smaller regional exchanges which are registered with SEC. Six months ago the commission moved for the first time, to close down one of them—the 100-year-old San Francisco Mining Exchange.

SEC said its action was for the protection of investors. The mining exchange, it said, did not regulate itself properly, failed to discipline errant members, and did not obey SEC instructions.

One highly important chapter will deal with operations of the over-the-counter market, the far-flung trade in securities not listed on any exchange.

Licenses Canceled

RANGOON, Burma (UPI)—The Burmese government has cancelled the licenses of 200 foreign doctors practicing in Burma and ordered them to wind up their activities by the end of the month, it was disclosed Sunday. However, no mention was made of American and German missionaries who run some of the largest medical establishments in the country.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:

♠ A Q J 6 4 ♥ 10 9 2 ♦ A 4 2 ♣ 3 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Four diamonds. You have the equivalent of an opening bid facing a partner who has opened and then jumped, so there are slam possibilities. The king of hearts is a potential value only with your hand protected from the opening lead, it might prove easier to try the shorter road to game.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠ K 8 7 ♥ K 9 5 ♦ 6 4 3 2 ♣ 8 7 2

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♥ Double 3 ♥ Pass

Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Three no trump. This is a pretty good hand for a partner who has undertaken a nine trick contract all by himself. The king of spades immediately with no sign of a fit. A free bid at the two level in a suit that outranks partner's should represent a hand of virtually opening bid strength.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

♠ J 10 7 6 ♥ K Q 10 4 3 ♦ 6 ♣ 10 4

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass

3 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. Partner has announced possession of virtually solid heart suit with no outside strength. Your hand will prove quite suitable to him and, since a slam is not even remotely in contemplation, you should pass.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠ 6 5 ♦ A K 10 8 7 3 ♣ A K J 10 6

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

Pass 1 ♦ Pass 4 ♥

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. Partner has announced possession of virtually solid heart suit with no outside strength. Your hand will prove quite suitable to him and, since a slam is not even remotely in contemplation, you should pass.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♠ J 9 ♥ J 9 2 ♦ A 10 4 ♣ A J 10 8 5

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Pass

2 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass

3 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Three spades. Your heart is stronger, the partnership preference is easily for spades. Partner has announced a holding of six spades and four hearts. If he held five spades and four hearts, the latter suit would have been shown on the second round.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠ J 7 ♥ A K 9 8 5 ♦ A K 10 4 ♣ 7 3

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

2 ♦ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

3 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Since partner's exact strength has not yet been determined, a further try is indicated and our recommendation is a raise to three spades. The slight risk of getting overboard is well calculated.

Q. 7—You are South, both sides vulnerable, and you hold:

♠ 4 ♥ K Q 4 3 2 ♦ A Q 6 4 3 ♣ 9 9

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

2 ♦ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

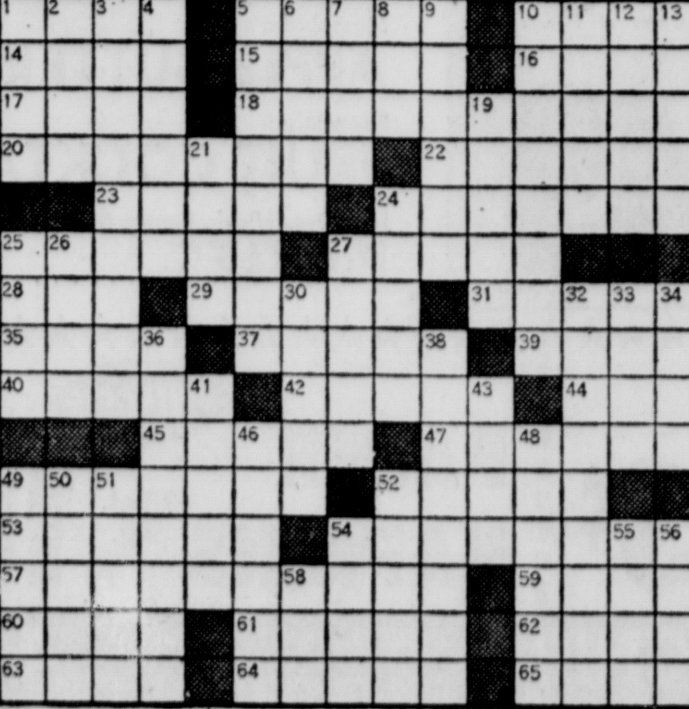

3 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—This hand has definite slam possibilities. Your hand is the equal of an opening bid. Partner has shown that he has more than an opening bid by raising you to three. If partner has the king of clubs or a singleton in the suit, slam prospects will be bright. The proper procedure is to bid four clubs and await partner's reaction to your mild slam try.

Medical Care Plan Marks Anniversary

REGINA (AP)—Saskatchewan's controversial medical care plan marks its first anniversary Monday in an atmosphere still charged with mistrust, suspicion and ill-will between most doctors and the provincial government.

The Socialist government's prepaid, tax-supported plan works. Residents pay premiums, visit doctors, and the bills are paid by the Medical Care Insurance Commission, the plan's administrative body.

Approximately 870,000 out of 930,000 persons in the province are covered by the plan.

It is the side issues that are keeping the wounds open. They were put aside in order to settle the basic dispute between the government and the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons last July 23.

At the outset the government sought comprehensive, compulsory medical care administered by government agency. The doctors objected that the plan would entail compulsion for patient and doctor as well as governmental control over the provision of medical services.

Doctors withdrew normal medical services last July and boycotted the government plan for 23 days prior to the signing of a truce known as the Saskatoon Agreement.

Under the agreement, the doctors were given the option of working directly under or outside the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Act.

But the areas of conflict remain broad and embrace aspects ranging from payment methods for some diagnostic services to complaints that hospital medical staffs discriminate against doctors working on consumer-sponsored community clinics.

News Commentary

By GARY HAMPTON

GENEVA (UPI)—A meeting regarded by the underdeveloped nations as "the most important event since the United Nations was founded" has been arranged after three weeks of preliminary talks here.

The United Nations Trade and Development Conference will be held sometime next year after another round of preliminary talks in January.

Its main aim will be to find ways of strengthening the poorer nations, according to Isiah Frank, U.S. deputy assistant secretary of state for economic affairs. Frank predicted it will barely touch the cold war, although it was the Soviet Union that first called for the meeting.

Frank, chief U.S. delegate at the preparatory talks here, said the conference plans a thorough reevaluation of the underdeveloped nations' trade relations with the industrial nations, and thus is considered of prime importance to them.

Frank said the major points on the agenda decided here were:

—The progressive reduction of all restrictions — mainly tariffs — on the development countries' trade with industrial nations.

—Improvement of trading terms obtained by the poorer countries in dealing with the "monolithic bargaining power" wielded by the state trading organizations of the Soviet bloc countries.

—The stabilization at "fair and and remunerative levels" of world market prices of raw materials exported by these nations, and other measures to avoid major fluctuations in these prices.

—Expansion of outlets for manufactured and semi-manufactured goods from developing nations, mostly in the industrial nations, since their markets are far greater.

—Increase financial assistance on liberal terms to poorer nations to help them buy capital goods needed in industrialization programs.

—Ways to increase their "invisible exports" by cutting freight and other charges "although much more study is required before any great progress can be made here."

—Possible creation of a new world trade organization under U.N. auspices to coordinate and possibly replace the existing international agencies working on development projects.

Frank said all items on the agenda already are being studied in one or other of the existing trade organs but the United States welcomed the conference to focus attention on them.

The U.S. delegation leader said East-West trading problems were excluded from the agenda because the conference was unable to deal with the complex political considerations involved.

Commission Will Probe Stock Market Operation

By STERLING F. GREEN
AP Business Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The stock market, trying hard to please after getting some bad marks in department, will receive its second report card soon from the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The disclosures won't jolt today's robust market into a sinking spell, well-posted sources said, but they may strain the remarkable amity which now prevails between the probers and the probed.

That's because this second bulky installment of SEC's 20-month investigation, broadest in the history of market regulation, will bore into the very heart of the securities industry, the major stock exchanges.

SEC's painstaking and scholarly investigating team will appraise critically the performance of exchange managements in protecting from fraud or deception the 17 million investors who buy, sell and own shares in American industry.

It will have high praise for many self-policing steps already taken voluntarily. But it is expected to point also to loopholes which it believes need plugging in operations of Wall Street's professionals — floor traders, specialists, "insiders" in brokerage houses — and analyze their trading operations before, during and after last year's frightening market crash.

The first installment—five long chapters issued April 3—reported some "grave abuses" but no pervading taint of dishonesty in the market. Reassuringly, most of its targets for criticism were found in the inconspicuous bypaths off Wall Street. The market rose.

Even so, installment No. 1 turned up enough slackness and shenanigans to support an SEC request to Congress for the most sweeping overhaul of the securities laws in their 30-year history. The Senate is working on them.

More legislation, plus still more rigorous self-regulation, may be recommended in the next four chapters of the report due this month. But SEC won't ask Congress to act on any additional bills this year.

The earlier SEC proposals have, moreover, been endorsed by the top men and organizations in the securities industry with a unanimity seldom shown on questions of federal regulation.

A crackdown on the disreputable minority would benefit everybody, the industry agrees. SEC in return has backpedaled the big exchanges and the broker-dealer groups for their "tremendous" cooperation and the housecleaning they have undertaken.

The president of the New York Stock Exchange, Keith Funston, helped make the pending legislation almost noncontroversial — and a fair bet for enactment this year — by telling the Senate Banking Committee:

"This bill would provide for closing major gaps in disclosure and self-regulation, and in the SEC's disciplinary authority — all of which would be beneficial to the economy and the public."

SEC gives much of the credit for the calm of the market and the investing public to the factual, fair and unsensational technique of the 35-man study group—SEC even avoids the word "investigation"—assembled under chief investigator Milton H. Cohen, Chicago attorney.

Cohen and four picked squad captains — attorney Richard H. Paul of New York, economist Sidney Martin Robbins of Columbia University, attorney Herbert G. Schick of Philadelphia, and Ralph S. Saul, the first SEC official in the group—have worked without fanfare.

There was every expectation, therefore, that the second installment of the report—and the third and last, some time later in the year—would be free of advance leaks and unsettling rumors, and devoid of scare words or sweeping generalizations that might undermine investor confidence.

Whether the aura of good feeling will survive the next massive installment — four long chapters, loose-bound and weighing around 10 pounds—may depend on what the SEC investigators have to say about such touchy matters as:

—Alleged laxity of the "Amex"—the American Stock Exchange, New York—in failing to detect and nip some sensational 1961 price-rigging. Under new leadership, the Amex has made great changes. Whether SEC considers them sufficient remains to be revealed.

—Some suspected failures of the "Big Board"—the New York Stock Exchange — to enforce its own rules and standards on erring members.

—A critical scrutiny of the odd-lots market, the vast volume of trading done in lots of fewer than 100 shares. Some critics charge that present practices result in unfairly heavy commission charges against small investors.

—A long-debated proposal that "floor trading" be curbed. Floor traders are exchange members who speculate with their own funds; they are supposed to contribute price stability by buying when others sell and vice versa. The Amex inquiry led to suspicion that the reverse might be true.

—A look-see into the role played by stock specialists. These are exchange members who are appointed by the exchange to conduct the daily auctions in specified securities. They are in effect officers of the exchange, obligated to buy and sell for their own accounts to assure orderly trading.

The SEC charged that misuse of this trust by two Amex specialists, Jerry Re and his son Gerard Re, cost investors millions while enriching the Res. The father-son team was expelled by Amex. They are now facing fraud charges.

—An appraisal of the market forces which contributed to the "Black Monday" collapse on May 28, 1962.

—An inquiry into operations of the dozen or so smaller regional exchanges which are registered with SEC. Six months ago the commission moved for the first time, to close down one of them — the 100-year-old San Francisco Mining Exchange.

SEC said its action was for the protection of investors. The mining exchange, it said, did not regulate itself properly, failed to discipline errant members, and did not obey SEC instructions.

One highly important chapter will deal with operations of the over-the-counter market, the far-flung trade in securities not listed on any exchange.

Licenses Canceled

RANGOON, Burma (UPI) — The Burmese government has cancelled the licenses of 200 foreign doctors practicing in Burma and ordered them to wind up their activities by the end of the month, it was disclosed Sunday. However, no mention was made of American and German missionaries who run some of the largest medical establishments in the country.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
(c 1963: By The Chicago Tribune)

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ
Q. 1—As South you hold:
A ♠ Q J 6 4 ♥ 10 9 2 ♦ A 4 2 ♣ 3 2

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Four diamonds. You have the equivalent of an opening bid facing a partner who has opened and then jumped, so there are slam possibilities present and one forward move by you is indicated. The recommended bid is to show the ace of diamonds. Any further action will devolve upon partner.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
A ♠ K 7 ♥ K 9 5 ♦ 6 4 3 2 ♠ 8 7 2
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♥ Double 3 ♥ Pass
Pass 3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Three no trump. This is a pretty good hand for a partner who has undertaken a nine trick contract all by himself. The king of spades should solidify that suit but, since the king of hearts represents a potential value only with your hand protected from the opening lead, it might prove easier to try the shorter road to game.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
A ♠ J 7 6 5 ♥ K Q 10 7 4 3 ♦ 6 ♠ 10 4
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♥ 2 ♠ ?

What do you bid?
A—Pass. A bid of two hearts would be highly dangerous since it forces partner into the three level immediately with no sign of a fit. A free bid at the two level in a suit that outranks partner's should represent a hand of virtually opening bid strength.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
A ♠ 6 5 ♦ A K 10 8 7 3 ♠ A K J 10 6
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass 1 ♥ Pass 4 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Pass. Partner has announced possession of virtually solid heart suit with no outside strength. Your hand will prove quite suitable to him and, since a slam is not even remotely in contemplation, you should pass.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
A ♠ J 9 ♥ J 9 2 ♦ A 10 4 ♠ A J 10 8 5
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass
3 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Three spades. The partnership preference is easily for spades. Partner has announced a holding of six spades and four hearts. If he held five spades and four hearts, the latter suit would have been shown on the second round.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
A ♠ J 7 ♥ A K 9 8 5 ♦ A K 10 4 ♠ 7 3
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♥ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—Since partner's exact strength has not yet been determined, a further try is indicated and our recommendation is a raise to three spades. The slight risk of getting overboard is well calculated.

Q. 7—You are South, both sides vulnerable, and you hold:
A ♠ 4 ♥ K Q 4 3 2 ♦ A Q 6 4 3 ♠ Q 9
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ 2 ♠ ?

What do you bid now?
A—Your opening bid has been based on a minimum in high card strength and a free rebid of two diamonds is not recommended. Actually there is a certain amount of danger involved in making such a bid, particularly if partner should rebid his suit which, at the moment, appears not improbable.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
A ♠ Q J 4 ♥ K Q 10 7 4 ♦ 6 ♠ A 9 4 2
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
3 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A—This hand has definite slam possibilities. Your hand is the equal of an opening bid. Partner has shown that he has more than an opening bid by raising you to three. If partner has the king of clubs or a singleton in the suit, slam prospects will be bright. The proper procedure is to bid four clubs and await partner's reaction to your mild slam try.

News Commentary

By GARY HAMPTON

GENEVA (UPI) — A meeting regarded by the underdeveloped nations as "the most important event since the United Nations was founded" has been arranged after three weeks of preliminary talks here.

The United Nations Trade and Development Conference will be held sometime next year after another round of preliminary talks in January.

Its main aim will be to find ways of strengthening the poorer nations, according to Isiah Frank, U.S. deputy assistant secretary of state for economic affairs. Frank predicted it will barely touch the cold war, although it was the Soviet Union that first called for the meeting.

Frank, chief U.S. delegate at the preparatory talks here, said the conference plans a thorough reevaluation of the underdeveloped nations' trade relations with the industrial nations, and thus is considered of prime importance to them.

Frank said the major points on the agenda decided here were: —The progressive reduction of all restrictions — mainly tariffs — on the development countries' trade with industrial nations. This parallels tariff cuts by the industrial nations.

—Improvement of trading terms obtained by the poorer countries in dealing with the "monolithic bargaining power" wielded by the state trading organizations of the Soviet bloc countries.

—The stabilization of "fair and remunerative levels" of world market prices of raw materials exported by these nations, and other measures to avoid major fluctuations in these prices.

—Expansion of outlets for manufactured and semi-manufactured goods from developing nations, mostly in the industrial nations, since their markets are far greater.

—Increased financial assistance on liberal terms to poorer nations to help them buy capital goods needed in industrialization programs.

—Ways to increase their "invisible exports" by cutting freight and other charges "although much more study is required before any great progress can be made here."

—Possible creation of a new world trade organization under U.N. auspices to coordinate and possibly replace the existing international agencies working on development projects.

Frank said all items on the agenda already are being studied in one or other of the existing trade organs but the United States welcomed the conference to focus attention on them.

The U.S. delegation leader said East-West trading problems were excluded from the agenda because the conference was unable to deal with the complex political considerations involved.

Accused Of Mutiny

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Police today arrested 26 Indian and three Pakistani crewmen after the captain of the British oil tanker Laris Tas accused them of mutiny. The captain said the crewmen had refused to unload the oil from the vessel since it arrived Thursday.

America lost a soldier but gained a world-famed writer when a bottle of bourbon was found in the West Point cadet quarters of Edgar Allen Poe. Then, as now, this was cause for dismissal.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — The biggest problems of college freshmen: How to study; how to organize time.

Freshmen at the University of Rochester College, asked to list "things I wish I'd known before coming to college," cited the two problems more frequently than any other.

Even those who said they personally had had little difficulty along such lines while in high school rated poor study habits and trouble with time at the head of the list.

Typical was the reply of a pretty blonde Texan, a national science scholarship winner. She said:

"At home I didn't have to study in order to get good marks. Here I have more competition because there are so many good students around."

"At first everything happened so fast during the lectures I couldn't get it all down."

Her advice to upcoming frosh: "Try to set up a work schedule. Remember that your class and study schedules at college won't be as rigid as in high school. For example, you get assignments in large batches instead of having to turn in work every day or so. At first there's a tendency to let things slide until the last minute —and then you find you can't possibly get everything done in time."

To the wish-I'd-learned-how-to-study theme, a New York coed added:

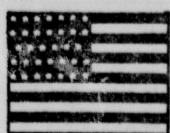

"For the first quarter of the year I didn't know what I was looking for in my reading. I thought I had to know every fact I read. It's best to be prepared to flounder a bit at first. In college studying, try to keep in mind the main ideas and don't try to memorize every detail."

The freshmen, however, stressed the importance of avoiding an "all work and no play" schedule. "You need time to let down," one reported. "Social life is part of the total campus experience," another said.

The students also said they wished they had known from the start that it's accepted practice to see the professors—not just when in trouble but simply to talk things over.

Decides On Name

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI has decided that his name in the Spanish language will be "Paulo VI," the Vatican secretary of state announced Sunday. The decision was handed down Sunday morning after nine days of confusion over whether the correct translation was "Paulo" or "Pablo."

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 284 Can you imagine a soldier today wanting to accept his pay in salt? In the past many soldiers were more than willing to do so, for there were recurrent times when salt was literally as good as gold as a medium of exchange. During an era when the Roman Caesars were debasing the value even of bronze coins by squandering tax money recklessly and running up huge governmental debts, soldiers in the imperial legions demanded and got their pay in salinus, or salt. That was the origin of the term "salary."

If Napoleon's army had made and enforced a similar demand, the invasion of Russia might have been less disastrous. For a lack of salt in their ration issues was declared an important reason why so many men in the ranks of the Grand Armee faltered by the roadsides.

Well aware of the vital importance of salt in everyone's diet, Union forces made destruction of Confederate salt works prime strategic objectives. Most salt production in the South was centered along the Atlantic coasts at evaporation plants where seawater was reduced to crystals.

The North had developed inland saline springs and rock-salt deposits and did not suffer the salt shortages that afflicted the Confederates, soldiers and civilians alike, after successive raids by Union naval and military forces.

British Guiana Citizens Face Uncertain Future

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—This place is like a dozen arsenals jammed full of TNT—with a lighted, slow-burning fuse.

The future of this tiny British South American colony is beclouded by a racial problem seemingly without solution.

The trouble is between British Guianese of East Indian descent and those of African descent. The fundamental issue is racism. An important side factor is communism.

By 1965 the world may see the first Marxist-Leninist government put into office through Western style elections. Civil war is almost certain to follow.

These are the conclusions of anxious, tense Guianese who feel that only the presence of British troops has kept their country from exploding into revolt.

The British are not expected to remain long in this teamy, tropical colony on South America's northeast shoulder. African and Indian leaders are pressing the British for immediate independence.

"Heaven help us when the British leave," said an East Indian businessman violently opposed to the government of Dr. Cheddi Jagan, the U.S.-educated dentist turned Marxist. Jagan is of Indian descent.

Smooth and darkly handsome, Jagan, 45, has been a power, off and on, in British Guiana for 10 years. He won't accept the label of Communist if only because, he claims, there are too many loose definitions on it. But he advocates a utopian state of democratic Marxism.

What is Jagan really?

"An incompetent, convinced

Marxist," growls Forbes Burnham, 40, a busy Socialist lawyer, boss of the leftwing People's National Congress, Jagan's main opponent. "He cannot get it through his head he cannot impose the Soviet system on British Guianese."

Burnham and Jagan were political pals at one time. Together they organized the People's Progressive Party, now Jagan's big, well-heeled political vehicle.

Burnham says he broke away for ideological reasons. Jagan hints that Burnham, whom he calls a "rank opportunist," saw a chance to enhance his political future by forming an anti-Marxist party desired by the British.

There is much here to support a view that the prime minister is a product of race consciousness and an unimaginative opposition that has failed to produce an alternative that would appeal to the majority Indian ranks.

The one-time dentist pulled himself to the top—and may stay there indefinitely unless erased violently—by wooing and winning the support of the East Indians, who make up roughly 51 per cent of the country's 600,000 inhabitants. Negroes, the next largest ethnic group, represent about 32 per cent of the population.

The African opposition is concentrated chiefly in Georgetown. This results in loud antigovernment noises that make Jagan appear even less popular than he is. The Indians are mostly farmers or rural folk.

Over half the women in the labor force are married and over half of these have children under 18, reports the Population Reference Bureau.

Finnigan's Hollywood

BY JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The devil arrived in town recently and settled near Beverly Hills, home of movie stars who have been accused of keeping company with him for years.

There are those moralists who say Satan has been here a long time, hiding in the hearts and minds of wicked actors, actresses, producers, directors and assorted hangers-on.

His arrival would have confirmed their suspicions if it was not for the fact that he's a make believe Satan. His earthly name is Donald Pleasence, an English actor who came over to play the devil in George Stevens' biblical movie "The Greatest Story Ever Told."

Sitting in the living room of his home, Pleasence seemed unlike anything usually associated with a devil. He doesn't leer, use bad language, or tempt, all devilish attitudes.

In the movie Donald isn't called the devil. They refer to him as "the dark hermit." He won't even look like a popular satanic conception.

"I don't have a tail and horns," said Pleasence, a balding 43-year-old actor. "I'm dressed rather like a wandering mendicant in a tattered looking robe. I'll also have a beard. I'll be an old man and when I'm first seen I'll be living in a cave. Throughout the picture I'll pop up from time to time. The temptation is always with us."

"Greatest Story" is Donald's first Hollywood film. He has appeared on the English stage and in films shot abroad. He is known to some American moviegoers for his role as a British flyer captured by the Germans in "The Great Escape."

The prisoner of war role is one he actually lived in real life when his bomber was shot down over France by the Germans during World War II.

He arrived in Hollywood recently with his wife and little daughter for the devil's role, one he says "emerges as quite a good part."

In the picture, Pleasence will have some scenes where he meets Jesus Christ.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Your Crowning Glory, Summer Version

At this time of year, many a woman is muttering to herself, "I MUST do something about my hair." If that's been your feeling lately — we second the motion.

Your hair care should be varied to suit the season; and this is a good time to consider new styling or shaping, anew approach to hair care and to any possible problems. For all these, a good starting point is a trip to consult a professional beautician.

We sometimes encounter women who feel that the beauty salon is only for the well-to-do, only interested in the weekly customer. On the contrary, most shops are well aware that many of you must be limited to occasional visits. They are not only glad to help you with a particular problem at one visit, but will gladly give advice on the best methods of home care.

For example, summer's coming spells "short, easily-kept" styles to many. The advantages of a professional cutting and shaping are so great, compared to haphazard home hacking! A good cut will save time, trouble with sins of pride," he said. "There are moments when we exchange looks and he knows who I am. But to the others I'm part of the crowd."

From Pleasence's description of the film devil, Satan doesn't appear as a hissing villain. "I'm quite charming if you care for the type," he concluded.

— and money — in easier care. The stylist will show you how to set and care for your new look, too.

You may be thinking of a new permanent, but doubtful about your hair's condition. Perhaps trimming away those split ends, postponing a new wave in favor of conditioning treatments, would be far more beneficial. Again, getting good advice may help you to improve your summer beauty, and to avoid costly and worrisome mistakes.

Whether you seek help with your hair often or rarely, you'll get the most out of your visits by co-operating with the professional. You may have a particular style in mind; but keep in mind, too, that this specialist can advise you on flattering lines and suitable styles. A little discussion beforehand is wise, while you voice any strong desires you may have, and accept the beautician's suggestions. Ask questions, and observe, and you'll pick up many helpful ideas. If you're not fully satisfied during the final combing-out, speak up — but remember that it may take a little time to get accustomed to a really new style.

And, of course, enjoy your visit. It's a real treat to put your head into good hands. Chances are very high that you'll look and feel like a new, and prettier, woman.

BONE-WEARY? CROSS? NEVER FUN TO BE WITH? Perk up your spirits and restore your charm-quotient now! The Three Days Of Gettysburg

Sidelights Of America's Greatest Drama

Artist's conception of Pickett's heroic charge at Gettysburg.

By JERRY KLEIN

THE GREATEST and most decisive battle ever to take place on American soil was fought just 100 years ago this week. Starting on July 1, 1863, it raged for three days and decided that the Union would remain inseparable.

The Confederate Army of Northern Virginia, 75,000 men, led by Gen. Robert E. Lee, invaded Pennsylvania and threatened to move on Washington. They were met by the Army of the Potomac, 85,000 troops under Gen. George G. Meade, at a crossroads community called Gettysburg.

More than 35,000 Americans, of both North and South, were to be killed or wounded in this historic fray. For a century, war experts have analyzed every detail of the battle's strategy. But this three-part series concerns not military tactics, but the little, half-forgotten events — courageous, inspiring, human and sometimes humorous — that make up the larger meaning, not just of Gettysburg, but of the entire War Between the States.

A Gettysburg newspaper, just before the great battle, carried an advertisement placed by haberdasher R. F. McIlheny offering "Spring styles of hats and caps . . . Boots and shoes comprising men's fine calf boots, balmorals, wellingtons, gaiters and brogans."

Confederate General Heth sent a brigade to get the much-needed hats and shoes. However, the Rebels encountered Yankee cavalry outside of town. As more and more units arrived in the area, the fighting increased — and the Battle of Gettysburg began.

As the Confederates marched toward Gettysburg, they passed through roads along which loyal Northern women waved small Union flags and taunted them by singing "The Star Spangled Banner." But the Rebel commander, General Lee, was such a strong and dignified figure that one girl declares, "Oh, I wish he was ours!"

As the 14th Tennessee Regiment was moving toward the battlefield during the night, a man started to sing "Home Sweet Home" in the quiet darkness. With great gentleness, he and his comrades went on to sing "Swanee River," "Old Kentucky Home" and other melodies expressing their love of the South, climaxed by "Dixie." Said one writer, "The effect was indescribable. The sweetness and beauty of it all may never be duplicated in song or scene."

A century has passed, but historians still debate the causes of the Confederate defeat, though there is considerable agreement that Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee was not an alert and aggressive in this battle as usually.

One notion is that July 1, 1863, found the general feeling poorly as the result of eating too many flapjacks — a favorite dish — the evening before.

Lee liked his pancakes "thin as a wafer and big nearly as a cart-wheel . . . with fresh butter and maple molasses and folded layers thick." Such ingredients had been scarce for a long time in the Confederacy, but advancing into Pennsylvania, his cook found it to be a land "flowing with milk and honey and other good things edible."

On the eve of battle, the cook outdid himself, the flapjacks were "too tempting, the general ate too plentifully, was sick accordingly, and Gettysburg was lost."

A Gettysburg woman went to General Lee to tell him that local families would soon be out of flour and asked his help. The Rebel commander arranged for the flour and also gave the woman his autograph, after a discussion of the war, saying to her, "It is to your interest to be for the Union, and I hope you may be as firm in your principles as I am in mine." The woman later recalled how Lee had described the war as "a cruel thing," expressing the desire "to go home and eat his bread there in peace."

The first soldier killed on the Gettysburg battlefield was a veteran of only one week's service. A Northerner, his name was George D. Sandoe.

Gettysburg was Northern territory, but there was a local youth named Wesley Culp who held Confederate sentiments and so became a member of the Virginia Infantry. The Southern invasion of Pennsylvania enabled young Culp to visit his mother, but he could stay for just a few minutes before rejoining his company. Two days later, within sight of his birthplace, death came to the Yankee who believed in the cause of the Confederacy—and he was "home to stay."

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I decided the very next time I read some dizzy advice out of you I would sit down and complain. Today is the day.

Your favorite expression is, "Tell 'em off." Sure, it's easy for you, safe out there in Chicago, to advise a woman in Longview, Washington, to "tell off" a nosey aunt who asks every day if she's pregnant yet. When some timid mouse in Appleton, Wisconsin, has trouble with a lecherous boss you say, "Tell him off!"

Last week it was more of the same. When relatives who owe you money buy themselves a new car, you say "Tell 'em off." And today, for the free-loading jerk who parks his carcass on the sofa and wears out the TV tubes, it's "Tell him off."

Don't you realize if these people had the nerve to tell somebody off they wouldn't be writing to you? Come down to earth old girl, and give your readers some practical help.—ANTI-PRATTLE

DEAR ANN: And what do you mean by "practical help?" Maybe I should go to Longview and Appleton and tell of the nosey aunt and the lecherous boss? Sorry, but telling people off is like sneezing. It doesn't do you any good unless you do it yourself.

A great many people who write for advice know full-well what they ought to do. They just need someone to give 'em a shove. So I shove 'em.

DEAR ANN: I felt sad for the girl who signed herself "Crushed" because she wasn't asked to the Junior-Senior Prom. Here's how the situation is handled at one of our city's finest high schools.

The students in the junior and senior classe elect a Prom Committee — four boy and four girls. Their purpose is to see that every girl has a date. Two weeks before prom time they check to learn who is dateless. They then get busy and start match-making.

There are usually more girls than boys, so the committee rounds up additional fellows from another school. They consider it their duty to see that every girl has an escort. Three of the fellows on the committee this year could have dated the cutest girls in school, but instead they asked some very plain girls who would have been difficult to fix up.

Result: Not a single girl missed the prom and I say—HOORAY FOR THEM

DEAR FRIEND: I say hooray for them, too. I hope many upcoming juniors and seniors will see this column and clip it for future reference. It's an excellent idea.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How can I get rid of a pest who has been making me behave like a criminal? This guy is a real weed. He calls me on the phone every day and I can't think of anything to say. He comes over every night even if I tell him I have another date. When I see his car pull up to the curb I duck into the hall, closest either mom or dad tells him I just left. If he sees me first through the picture windows I'm stuck.

He has given me some expensive gifts which he thinks entitles him to my company. Some guys try to buy a girl this way, but I am not for sale. How can I get the idea across to him once and for all?—DOODIE BUG

DEAR BUG: If you really want to get rid of the boy, bundle up those expensive gifts, return them and tell him goodbye. It is dishonest to accept tokens of affection when you can return nothing.

And your parents should not participate in this cheap conspiracy. It's degrading both to them and to you.

Confidential to ANGEL OR SUCKER?: You have done more than your share. Move out of that loony bin before you're as goofy as the rest of them. And be sure to turn in your key or they may continue to charge you "rent."

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Your Crowning Glory, Summer Version

At this time of year, many a woman is muttering to herself, "I MUST do something about my hair." If that's been your feeling lately — we second the motion.

Your hair care should be varied to suit the season; and this is a good time to consider new styling or shaping, anew approach to hair care and to any possible problems. For all these, a good starting point is a trip to consult a professional beautician.

We sometimes encounter women who feel that the beauty salon is only for the well-to-do, only interested in the weekly customer. On the contrary, many shops are well aware that many of you must be limited to occasional visits. They are not only glad to help you with a particular problem at one visit, but will gladly give advice on the best methods of home care.

For example, summer's coming spells "short, easily-kept" styles to many. The advantages of a professional cutting and shaping are so great, compared to haphazard home hacking! A good cut will save time, trouble

You may be thinking of a new permanent, but doubtful about your hair's condition. Again, getting good advice may help you to improve your summer beauty, and to avoid costly and worrisome mistakes.

Whether you seek help with your hair often or rarely, you'll get the most out of your visits by co-operating with the professional. You may have a particular style in mind; but keep in mind, too, that this specialist can advise you on flattering lines and suitable styles. A little discussion beforehand is wise, while you voice any strong desires you may have, and accept the beautician's suggestions. Ask questions, and observe, and you'll pick up many helpful ideas. If you're not fully satisfied during the final combing-out, speak up — but remember that it may take a little time to get accustomed to a really new style.

And, of course, enjoy your visit. It's a real treat to put your head into good hands. Chances are very high that you'll look and feel like a new, and prettier, woman.

Grave Thoughts Upon The Heat

In Chicago, the American Medical Association gave mother some hints the other day. They had to do with hot weather, a seasonal topic. Mothers were advised not to complain in front of their children about the heat.

The little people didn't mind the heat, it was contended, unless their parents conditioned them to dislike it by referring to it all the time and mopping their brows madly.

But it is easy to see some practical hardship's in mother's way. What happens when, not wishing to complain of the heat in front of a child (like not mentioning the Profumo case), a mother sneaks into an air-conditioned shop and leaves the little fellow roasting on the pavement outside?

The little chap might not realize just what he was missing, but it still seems hardly fair.

Then there's the problem of soft drinks and ice cream cones. A child could grow into adulthood with the bitter complaint to a psychiatrist that he hated his mother because she used to reject his pleas for hot-weather refreshment with such cruel cries as: "Down, brat; it's only your imagination. It's really quite cool—only 110 in the shade. So start shivering!"

But it is to be doubted the AMA suggestion will have much effect either way. Parents cannot expect to stop their growing children from hisping phrases like, "It isn't the heat; it's the humidity." That's part of the human heritage.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Who Can Stop Goldwater?

There is an air of panic in eastern, "liberal" Republican circles as the Goldwater bandwagon rolls. The eastern Republicans are now face to face with an old truth: you can't win a horse race if you haven't a horse.

The reports coming back from Denver, Colo., where the Republican National Committee recently met, highlight the difficulties of the eastern Republican liberals. They wanted it known in Denver that Goldwater was not their man. But to head off a front-runner they could offer no potential front-runner candidate of their own. The collapse of the Nelson Rockefeller candidacy has caught them short, with all too little time in which to reform their ranks.

This is a new experience for the easterners. Always, since 1940, they have had a potential front-runner ready quite early in the game. Their 1940 candidate, Wendell Willkie, had become famous in the Thirties as the Commonwealth and Southern attorney who had already taken on the champ, Franklin Roosevelt, in fighting the TVA. In 1944 and 1948 the glamorous racket-buster, Tom Dewey, was off and running well before convention time. And in 1952 the eastern Republicans were primed with Ike Eisenhower, the war hero. With such potential front-runners, it was possible to beat back the recurrent claims of "Mr. Republican," the perennially hopeful Senator Robert Taft.

Caught without a natural front-running candidate, the eastern liberals of the Republican Party have had to fall back on the tactic of encouraging favorite sons. Governor Romney of Michigan has been given a whirl, and now Governor Scranton of Pennsylvania has announced that he is willing to take the first-round convention vote of his home state delegation. But it is a long time now since a favorite son or a dark horse waltzed off with the Republican nomination for President.

Moreover, neither the favorite son nor the dark horse gambit can lead to much if there is no prospect of a deadlocked convention. When the Nelson Rockefeller candidacy was blooming, the worst that the eastern Republicans could visualize was a convention stand-off with the Goldwater forces. Given such a stand-off, there might be hopes for compromising on a Scranton or a Romney.

Far back in Republican history, in 1920, it was possible to pull the candidacy of Warren G. Harding out of a hat when the hopes of Leonard Wood, Frank O. Lowden and others collapsed because of ballooning weariness. But, at this moment of writing, there seems to be no possibility of provoking a stand-off for the simple reason that the eastern Republicans lack a horse with the ability to run a dead heat.

With the development of radio, TV and the big circulation mass media, it is, of course, barely possible that a Scranton or a Romney can be built up to potential front-runner status in the twelve months that remain between now and the 1964 convention. But the chances are against any such thing happening. Romney, who was a maverick as an automobile executive, has had enough Michigan industry support to make him governor, but the old-line motor manufacturing people, who recall that he rose to prominence by trading their cars as "gas-guzzling dinosaurs," don't really love him. As for Scranton, he is bound to have trouble in Pennsylvania because of the local tax increases which he has managed to jam through his legislature. Romney and Scranton are obviously able men, and one could visualize a convention turning to either one of them on the nineteenth or twentieth ballot just to get a weary session over with. But to make either one of them a glamorous front-runner in a year's time when so little is currently known about their opinions on a whole mass of subjects, from Cuba to atomic testing, would seem to be beyond the power of even the most deft Madison Avenue operator.

Then there is that possible deterrent, the Conservative Party of New York, which has served notice that it will put its own presidential candidate in the field if the Republicans nominate a "liberal." To avoid a Conservative Party booby-trap in New York State, maybe some eastern Republicans will be willing to take Goldwater in spite of ideological differences. Where they were obviously willing to risk conservative defections from the standard of a politically healthy Rockefeller, they might be less willing to tempt the fates with a less vibrant liberal candidate.

Preliminary Match

Political Implications Of A Moral Decision

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON
Civil rights long since divided the Democratic Party into hostile northern and southern wings. And now the mounting racial crisis promises to cause an equally bitter division in the Republican Party.

As yet, only the first grumblings and mutterings of the coming battle are to be heard in various Republican quarters. But on present form, it is a reasonable prediction that the next Republican convention will be dominated, and its outcome may be decided, by a knock-down-drag-out fight about the Republican stand on civil rights.

There are three reasons for this prediction. In the first place, the recent Republican rally at Denver rang with sanguine discussion of the Republican Party's chance of victory as a "white man's party" with the hero of the Southern conservatives, Sen. Barry Goldwater, as its standard-bearer.

Secondly, both sides have already thrown down their gauges of battle—although surprisingly little attention has been paid to this striking fact.

Sen. Goldwater, for his part, while saying that he was for some sections of President Kennedy's civil rights bill, has taken his stand four-square with the Southern Democrats on the guts of the matter. In other words, he has attacked the proposal to desegregate public facilities as an offense against states' rights, and he has sworn that he will never vote for a cloture to get a civil rights bill through the Senate.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York has responded to Goldwater by coming out for the entire civil rights bill without qualification and urging all Congressional Republicans to support it. In reality, Gov. Rockefeller now conceives his fight for the Republican Presidential nomination quite largely in terms of a fight against the "white man's party" theory of Republican strategy.

Third and most important of all, the presidential aspirants are not the only leading Republicans who are squaring off for the fray. The extremely able and astute Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania is a declared non-candidate. But he is also grimly determined to use every Pennsylvania delegate to block the Republicans who want the 1964 election to be a "lily white versus liberal fight."

This was a primary motive, in fact, of Gov. Scranton's decision to become a favorite son candidate, and thus to establish iron-clad control of Pennsylvania's large convention delegation. The other motive was the Governor's desire to teach a lesson to the Republicans who have been saying the "northeast can be written off"—who are precisely the Republicans talking about a "white man's party."

In every one of the states with large convention delegations—California, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio and so on down the line—the need to make the choice already made by Gov. Scranton is also causing heart-searching and position-taking.

In California, to name the most notable example, a primary fight is rather plainly shaping up. A pro-Goldwater delegation is already in formation. And the more moderate California Republicans are already pressing Sen. Thomas Kuchel to stand as California's favorite son at the head of a moderate delegation, if this is needed to whip the Goldwaterites.

Every kind of attempt will of course be made to blur the issue which has just begun to divide the Republicans, as it has already divided the Democrats. It will be pointed out, with pious indignation, that Sen. Goldwater is not racist, which is certainly true; and much will be made of the fact that as a young man, he helped to desegregate the Phoenix, Ariz. school system.

But in the present context, these facts are almost as irrelevant as the fact that Goldwater is an extremely pleasant human being. He advocates a Republican strategy primarily keyed to an appeal to Southern conservative votes. He wants his party to put states' rights above civil rights. He is against cloture, even if needed to pass a civil rights bill. That adds up, nowadays, to being against civil rights.

If the Republican Party nominates a standard-bearer who is against civil rights for all practical purposes, the Republican Party will then, quite unavoidably, assume the role of the "white man's party." The practical temptations to do this are obvious. Indeed, they have been forthrightly underlined by Sen. Goldwater, himself, who has often pointed out that "the Republicans can never get Negro votes anyway."

But this is a moral decision as well as a political decision; and it is to be hoped that a majority of Republicans will see it that way.

Results Of Study On Ringworm Of The Feet

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

A group of London dermatologists conducted a study on ringworm of the feet in 400 boys, aged 13 to 18, living in school boarding houses. Abnormalities between the toes such as peeling, cracks, and blisters showed in 271, but the lesions were caused by fungal infections in only half this number. This demonstrates the importance of doing microscopic tests on scrapings from the skin between the toes rather than to conclude that all scaling is ringworm.

On the other hand, these physicians made ringworm tests on the toes of every boy in the school. The results were positive in 123 of the old students and in 3 new students. Further studies revealed that the longer the lad was in school, the more likely he was to acquire a few fungi on the skin between the toes.

The causative fungal organisms were present on the skin of 18 boys who had no lesions. These students were watched carefully and, when examined six months later, 16 of the 18 had the beginning signs of ringworm. There was peeling of the skin between the toes in 14, and the dermatologists decided this was the earliest manifestation. The fungi live on the skin for some time and enter when resistance is lowered.

The rapid rise in the incidence of the infection during the first two years at school are spread from person to person, possibly from walking barefoot on contaminated floors. This is an example of the pendulum swinging back to the wet floors of showers and around swimming pools as the culprit in the transmission of disease. This manner of spreading fungi has been downgraded in recent years.

The British dermatologists had a chance to compare three forms of treatment. The undecylenic acid aerosol spray gave the best results (87.8 per cent). But the old faithful, inexpensive Whitfield's ointment and dusting powder, were not far behind with 86.5 per cent good results. An English product, Teoquil gel and powder, was far behind. Oral fungicides were not used in this survey.

As a preventive, the British physicians suggest drying the feet thoroughly after bathing, the application of salicylic acid dusting powder, and wearing slippers to avoid direct contact with wet floors.

Dr. Van Dellen will send leaflet on ringworm of the feet if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Prosperous Italy

In Italy the movement has been somewhat different, but the political results are similar. The population move in Italy has been from the poverty-stricken South to the prosperous North, where the Fiat auto works, the Perelli tire factory, and various steel mills have made Northern Italy one of the most prosperous areas in the world.

These southern workers, moving to the well-organized north, have joined the union-organized Communist Party, and were one reason for the increased Communist vote at the last election. The Communist Party in Catholic Italy today, incidentally, is the biggest in Europe—outside of Russia.

But one development President Kennedy will find regarding his own church is that the top Cardinals of France and Germany have moved more to the left. They shared emphatically the liberalism of the late Pope John, and even endorsed French coal miners when they were striking against President De Gaulle.

One reason for the left trend of the Church in Italy has been the failure of the Italian government—until recently—to carry out basic social and economic reforms.

Up until the center-left coalition under Fanfani changed them, Italy still continued the motion picture censorship laws of Mussolini, the highly unfair system of taxing the consumer as against the wealthy, and various other hangovers from the Fascist regime.

It was only in the last two years that the new burst of Italian liberalism, encouraged by Pope John, put across pensions for older people such as the United States has had for twenty years, free text books for the first five grades in school, job protection for pregnant women, a 15 per cent withholding tax on dividends, and a certain amount of land reform.

These were what caused some of the Catholic Party to move further to the right, while the Communists, who claimed the reforms were too cautious, picked up votes.

John F. Kennedy, an astute student of politics, will be highly interested in this situation. He faces somewhat the same problems at home.

Barnett Comes To Washington

Gov. Ross Barnett, the governor of Mississippi who made headlines at Ole Miss, came to Washington the other day on a non-university matter—promotion of the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway which will cost all the taxpayers $281,000,000 but will materially benefit Mississippi.

The Civil Rights Commission had previously urged President Kennedy to cut off all federal funds from Mississippi, which now gets about three times as much money from the federal government as it raises in taxes itself.

During a breakfast of southern supporters of the Tombigbee Waterway, Gov. Barnett got some practical advice from another Southerner, Rep. Joe Evins, D-Tenn.

"Let's be practical," he said. "How do you fellows expect to get a project of this magnitude approved when you are fighting the President and the administration all of the time?"

Barnett didn't reply, just grinned.

Evins later told colleagues that the hostility of Barnett and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama to virtually all New Frontier legislation in Congress was seriously hampering efforts to get approval of projects like Tennessee-Tombigbee, beneficial to the South.

Helping Another Senator

It is almost unbelievable for a Senator running for re-election to divert campaign funds to another Senator.

However, Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, is so well regarded personally by his fellow Senators that "Scoop" Jackson, Wash., Phil Hart, Mich., and Ed Muskie, Me., have asked their friends to contribute to Moss's campaign so he can tell his story to the people.

It happens that Jackson, Hart, and Muskie are all running for re-election. It also happens that the White House had dropped private word that it had written off re-election prospects of certain Western Senators—among them Moss.

His colleagues, however, don't think so. Sen. Clint Anderson, D-New Mex., thinks so highly of this Mormon that he has stepped aside on the Interior Committee so Moss could be Reclamation Subcommittee chairman—a most important post for Utah.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

It was a day for patriots. The crowd waited patiently in front of Borough Hall. A politician said:

"... and now, I present with pride Brooklyn's own Medal of Honor winner, Tom Kelly." The people stirred with applause. The young man with the dark hair and the round handsome face stood stunned. He hadn't expected this. He walked to the microphone and murmured: "Let me tell you about my friends..." The throat constricted. The tears came. He bowed his head. Tom Kelly got no further. People in the crowd wept without knowing why.

April 5th, 1945, was cool. There was no mist at dawn. Company C, 48th Armored Infantry Battalion of the 7th Armored Division loaded up a road behind six Sherman tanks. The road cut between two bald hills. At the bottom on the far side was Alemert. Another village with peaked houses and shutters. The soldiers swallowed dust behind the clanking tanks.

The parade started down toward the village. Nothing stirred. Just clear dead dawn. The first shell came from the right and sounded like a runaway freight train. The second hit the lead Sherman. Two big Mark Four tanks had been waiting. The shutters opened. Machine guns winked like men smoking in the dark.

Five tanks and Company C retreated back over the hill. The sixth was an oven for a crew. Tom Kelly, medic, sat with the others. The war would be over in a month. Who wanted to die now? Nobody. Especially Yarborough and his buddy. Yarborough was the company drunk. He scrounged alcohol everywhere. If death came, Yarborough would slur his sheepish "Hello." His buddy was a cipher. He did nothing—right or wrong.

The captain came running. He said to get on their feet. They would flank the village by running down the bald hill on the left side of the road and getting behind the Mark fours. The men started up slowly. They were chronically suspicious of tactics. The first platoon formed up and started over the top of the hill and down the open area.

When they were 300 yards down, the Mark fours opened up with 88's. The machine guns behind shutters started again. Sixty Americans began to run back up the hill. The captain yelled "Get off the hill!" Kelly kicked two fence posts down and stood on the barbed wire. "Through here!" he yelled. Some made it. Some did not.

Kelly was terrified. He looked back at the wounded, writhing and screaming. He saw seven men, blinded, running in circles bumping into each other. He didn't want to go back. He had to. It would be worse on the safe side of the hill, listening to them. Tracers slashed pink crayon lines across the hill

as he yelled to the blind: "This is Doc. This is Doc. Get down. Down."

They got. He inched them toward each other. "Hang onto the man in front of you," he yelled. "When I give the word, get up and I'll take the lead man over the hill." In blackness, in pain, they waited. Kelly yelled "Now!" They staggered back up the hill, a bunch of boys playing blind man's buff. Kelly noticed that one machine gun from one window kept taking dead aim at him. He cursed. He vowed to get that one later.

The men made it over the hill. Kelly went back. Each time he found a man, he dusted sula in the wound, made a tourniquet, if one was necessary, and slung the man diagonally across his back. Then he staggered back up. One man died in his arms. Another had an arm hanging by a shred and he kept trying to throw it away. "I don't want it," he mumbled. "I don't want it."

Tom Kelly thought to himself: "If I've ever done anything good, give me a break now." After the ninth trip over the hill, Kelly was drenched with blood and exhausted. "Help me," he roared at the platoon. The men averted their faces. "Help me somebody." Yarborough raised a hand. "I'll help," he said. His buddy nodded. "Me too."

They crept over the brow, then stood and ran to the wounded. Kelly looked around. Yarborough was tilting. One leg was off. He was falling in slow motion. He was dead before he fell. The cipher had his helmet and head split by a shell. Tom Kelly made it back with the 17th wounded man. He passed out.

Air support came and Alemert was taken. At 9 A.M. Tom Kelly awakened on the hill and remembered the German machine gunner. He ran down the hill like a madman, kicked a door in, leaped at the German sitting behind the machine gun, and started to strangle him.

He saw blood. The German was wounded. Kelly hesitated. He bound the wound and yelled for a jeep. He watched the soldier go off to a field hospital. A lot of good men on both sides died that morning. It is a long time ago and Tom Kelly was admitted to practice law in New York yesterday. He's 39 now. He's married to the lovely Wilma Grassman and they have a daughter Patty, 13, Tommy, 12, and Kathy, 5.

He seldom looks at his Medal of Honor. He thinks often of Yarborough and his buddy. "They got nothing," he says. "They died and nobody even remembers their names." That is why, when he stood before the big crowd at Brooklyn's Borough Hall, he said: "Let me tell you about my friends..."

Grave Thoughts
Upon The Heat

In Chicago, the American Medical Association gave mother some hints the other day. They had to do with hot weather, a seasonal topic. Mothers were advised not to complain in front of their children about the heat.

The little people didn't mind the heat, it was contended, unless their parents conditioned them to dislike it by referring to it all the time and mopping their brows madly.

But it is easy to see some practical hardship's in mother's way. What happens when, not wishing to complain of the heat in front of a child (like not mentioning the Profumo case), a mother sneaks into an air-conditioned shop and leaves the little fellow roasting on the pavement outside?

The little chap might not realize just what he was missing, but it still seems hardly fair.

Then there's the problem of soft drinks and ice cream cones. A child could grow into adulthood with the bitter complaint to a psychiatrist that he hated his mother because she used to reject his pleas for hot-weather refreshment with such cruel cries as: "Down, brat; it's only your imagination. It's really quite cool—only 110 in the shade. So start shivering!"

But it is to be doubted the AMA suggestion will have much effect either way. Parents cannot expect to stop their growing children from lisping phrases like, "It isn't the heat; it's the humidity." That's part of the human heritage.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Who Can Stop Goldwater?

There is an air of panic in eastern, "liberal" Republican circles as the Goldwater bandwagon rolls. The eastern Republicans are now face to face with an old truth: you can't win a horse race if you haven't a horse.

The reports coming back from Denver, Colo., where the Republican National Committee recently met, highlight the difficulties of the eastern Republican liberals. They wanted it known in Denver that Goldwater was not their man. But to head off a front-runner they could offer no potential front-runner candidate of their own. The collapse of the Nelson Rockefeller candidacy has caught them short, with all too little time in which to reform their ranks.

This is a new experience for the easterners. Always, since 1940, they have had a potential front-runner ready quite early in the game. Their 1940 candidate, Wendell Willkie, had become famous in the Thirties as the Commonwealth and Southern attorney who had already taken on the champ, Franklin Roosevelt, in fighting the TVA. In 1944 and 1948 the glamorous racket-buster, Tom Dewey, was off and running well before convention time. And in 1952 the eastern Republicans were primed with Ike Eisenhower, the war hero. With such potential front-runners, it was possible to beat back the recurrent claims of "Mr. Republican," the perennially hopeful Senator Robert Taft.

Caught without a natural front-running candidate, the eastern liberals of the Republican Party have had to fall back on the tactic of encouraging favorite sons. Governor Romney of Michigan has been given a whirl, and now Governor Scranton of Pennsylvania has announced that he is willing to take the first-round convention vote of his home state delegation. But it is a long time now since a favorite son or a dark horse walked off with the Republican nomination for President.

Moreover, neither the favorite son nor the dark horse gambit can lead to much if there is no prospect of a deadlocked convention. When the Nelson Rockefeller candidacy was blooming, the worst that the eastern Republicans could visualize was a convention stand-off with the Goldwater forces. Given such a stand-off, there might be hopes for compromising on a Scranton or a Romney.

Far back in Republican history, in 1920, it was possible to pull the candidacy of Warren G. Harding out of a hat when the hopes of Leonard Wood, Frank O. Lowden and others collapsed because of balloting weariness. But, at this moment of writing, there seems to be no possibility of provoking a stand-off for the simple reason that the eastern Republicans lack a horse with the ability to run a dead heat.

With the development of radio, TV and the big circulation mass media, it is, of course, barely possible that a Scranton or a Romney can be built up to potential front-runner stature in the twelve months that remain between now and the 1964 convention. But the chances are against any such thing happening. Romney, who was a maverick as an automobile executive, has had enough Michigan industry support to make him governor, but the old-line motor manufacturing people, who recall that he rose to prominence by traducing their cars as "gas-guzzling dinosaurs," don't really love him. As for Scranton, he is bound to have trouble in Pennsylvania because of the local tax increases which he has managed to jam through his legislature. Romney and Scranton are obviously able men, and one could visualize a convention turning to either one of them on the nineteenth or twentieth ballot just to get a weary session over with. But to make either one of them a glamorous front-runner in a year's time when so little is currently known about their opinions on a whole mass of subjects, from Cuba to atomic testing, would seem to be beyond the power of even the most deft Madison Avenue operator.

Then there is that possible deterrent, the Conservative Party of New York, which has served notice that it will put its own presidential candidate in the field if the Republicans nominate a "liberal." To avoid a Conservative Party booby-trap in New York State, maybe some eastern Republicans will be willing to take Goldwater in spite of ideological differences. Where they were obviously willing to risk conservative defections from the standard of a politically healthy Rockefeller, they might be less willing to tempt the fates with a less vibrant liberal candidate.

Preliminary Match

Political Implications Of A Moral Decision

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON
Civil rights long since divided the Democratic Party into hostile northern and southern wings. And now the mounting racial crisis promises to cause an equally bitter division in the Republican Party.

As yet, only the first grumblings and mutterings of the coming battle are to be heard in various Republican quarters. But on present form, it is a reasonable prediction that the next Republican convention will be dominated, and its outcome may be decided, by a knock-down-drag-out fight about the Republican stand on civil rights.

There are three reasons for this prediction. In the first place, the recent Republican rally at Denver rang with sanguine discussion of the Republican Party's chance of victory as a "white man's party" with the hero of the Southern conservatives, Sen. Barry Goldwater, as its standard-bearer.

Secondly, both sides have already thrown down their gauges of battle—although surprisingly little attention has been paid to this striking fact.

Sen. Goldwater, for his part, while saying that he was for some sections of President Kennedy's civil rights bill, has taken his stand four-square with the Southern Democrats on the guts of the matter. In other words, he has attacked the proposal to desegregate public facilities as an offense against states' rights, and he has sworn that he will never vote for a cloture to get a civil rights bill through the Senate.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York has responded to Goldwater by coming out for the entire civil rights bill without qualification and urging all Congressional Republicans to support it. In reality, Gov. Rockefeller now conceives his fight for the Republican Presidential nomination quite largely in terms of a fight against the "white man's party" theory of Republican strategy.

Third and most important of all, the presidential aspirants are not the only leading Republicans who are squaring off for the fray. The extremely able and astute Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania is a declared non-candidate. But he is also grimly determined to use every Pennsylvania delegate to block the Republicans who want the 1964 election to be a "lily white versus liberal fight."

This was a primary motive, in fact, of Gov. Scranton's decision to become a favorite son candidate, and thus to establish irradical control of Pennsylvania's large convention delegation. The other motive was the Governor's desire to teach a lesson to the Republicans who have been saying the "northeast can be written off"—who are precisely the Republicans talking about a "white man's party."

In every one of the states with large convention delegations—California, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio and so on down the line—the need to make the choice already made by Gov. Scranton is also causing heart-searching and position-taking.

SLOGANS—No campaign would be complete without its bumper-sticker slogans. With Sen. Barry Goldwater's rise in favor among GOP voters, a simple, straightforward "Goldwater in '64" sticker is getting a good play on the rear bumper of cars. But a new one that has some of the politicians stumped, reads: "Kennedy for King, Goldwater for President."

FAST FOOTWORK — A clear sign that the political season is approaching can be found in the various ways that potential vice presidential candidates discuss their future without either announcing their candidacy, which would be presumptuous as well as futile, or disavowing their willingness to accept same should it be offered.

One thing is certain. None of this coterie of runners-for-second-place on a political ticket is willing to make a statement similar to the one that made Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman famous: "If nominated, I will not accept; if elected, I will not serve."

One of the men frequently mentioned as a vice presidential possibility on the Republican ticket is Sen. Clifford P. Case, of New Jersey. When confronted with the question of his availability the other day, Case replied disarmingly:

"Well, I'd be less than human if I wasn't very deeply pleased and gratified by anybody's thinking that I might be competent for this job. I think it's a matter somebody besides me is going to have to answer."

Kennedy Will Find Italy's Political Problems Something Like His Own

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—The first Catholic President in American history will find political problems similar to his own when he meets with the leaders of the leading Catholic country of Europe.

It so happens that the Christian Democratic Party, completely Catholic, which has dominated Italy ever since the war, has drifted further and further away from the original liberal leadership of Premier De Gasperi, the recent liberalism of Pope John and Premier Fanfani, so that today the new Premier cannot control a majority in Parliament.

Simultaneously in the United States, the Democratic Party, which John F. Kennedy heads, has drifted more and more away from his liberal leadership, so that today he cannot control a majority in Congress.

Actually the Democratic Party in the United States is composed of splinter groups, similar to the splinter groups in the Italian government. All during the Roosevelt and Truman administrations the Democratic Party consisted of an alliance between the Protestant South; The big city machines, largely Catholic; labor, also largely Catholic; with considerable support from Jewish and Negro voters.

But the Democratic South, now prosperous from the southward trek of industry and aroused over civil rights, has largely deserted the Democratic President; while his own Catholic supporters have drifted more to the suburbs and new middle class prosperity, and with this they have more and more deserted their old liberalism.

He walked to the microphone and murmured: "Let me tell you about my friends..." The throat constricted. The tears came. He bowed his head. Tom Kelly got no further. People in the crowd wept without knowing why.

April 5th, 1945, was cool. There was no mist at dawn. Company C, 48th Armored Infantry Battalion of the 7th Armored Division loafed up a road behind six Sherman tanks. The road cut between two bald hills. At the bottom on the far side was Alemert. Another village with peaked houses and shutters. The soldiers swallowed dust behind the clanking tanks.

The parade started down toward the village. Nothing stirred. Just clear dead dawn. The first shell came from the right and sounded like a runaway freight train. The second hit the lead Sherman. Two big Mark Four tanks had been waiting. The shutters opened. Machine guns winked like men smoking in the dark.

Five tanks and Company C retreated back over the hill. The sixth was an oven for a crew. Tom Kelly, medic, sat with the others. The war would be over in a month. Who wanted to die now? Nobody. Especially Yarborough and his buddy. Yarborough was the company drunk. He scrounged alcohol everywhere. If death came, Yarborough would slur his sheepish "Hello." His buddy was a cipher. He did nothing—right or wrong.

The captain came running. He said to get on their feet. They would flank the village by running down the bald hill on the left side of the road and getting behind the Mark fours. The men started up slowly. They were chronically suspicious of tactics. The first platoon formed up and started over the top of the hill and down the open area.

When they were 300 yards down, the Mark fours opened up with 88's. The machine guns behind shutters started again. Sixty Americans began to run back up the hill. The captain yelled "Get off the hill!" Kelly kicked two fence posts down and stood on the barbed wire. "Through here!" he yelled. Some made it. Some did not.

Kelly was terrified. He looked back at the wounded, writhing and screaming. He saw seven men, blinded, running in circles bumping into each other. He didn't want to go back. He had to. It would be worse on the safe side of the hill, listening to them. Tracers slashed pink crayon lines across the hill

They got. He inched them toward each other. "Hang onto the man in front of you," he yelled. "When I give the word, get up and I'll take the lead man over the hill." In blackness, in pain, they waited. Kelly yelled "Now!" They staggered back up the hill, a bunch of boys playing blind man's buff. Kelly noticed that one machine gun from one window kept taking dead aim at him. He cursed. He vowed to get that one later.

The men made it over the hill. Kelly went back. Each time he found a man, he dusted sulfa in the wound, made a tourniquet, if one was necessary, and slung the man diagonally across his back. Then he staggered back up. One man died in his arms. Another had an arm hanging by a shred and he kept trying to throw it away. "I don't want it," he mumbled. "I don't want it."

Tom Kelly thought to himself: "If I've ever done anything good, give me a break now." After the ninth trip over the hill, Kelly was drenched with blood and exhausted. "Help me," he roared at the platoon. The men averted their faces. "Help me somebody." Yarborough raised a hand. "I'll help," he said. His buddy nodded. "Me too."

They crept over the brow, then stood and ran to the wounded. Kelly looked around. Yarborough was tilting. One leg was off. He was falling in slow motion. He was dead before he fell. The cipher had his helmet and head split by a shell. Tom Kelly made it back with the 17th wounded man. He passed out.

Air support came and Alemert was taken. At 9 A.M. Tom Kelly awakened on the hill and remembered the German machine gunner. He ran down the hill like a madman, kicked a door in, leaped at the German sitting behind the machine gun, and started to strangle him.

He saw blood. The German was wounded. Kelly hesitated. He bound the wound and yelled for a jeep. He watched the soldier go off to a field hospital. A lot of good men on both sides died that morning. It is a long time ago and Tom Kelly was admitted to practice law in New York yesterday. He's 39 now. He's married to the lovely Wilma Grassman and they have a daughter Patty, 13, Tommy, 12, and Kathy, 5.

He seldom looks at his Medal of Honor. He thinks often of Yarborough and his buddy. "They got nothing," he says. "They died and nobody ever remembers their names." That is why, when he stood before the big crowd at Brooklyn's Borough Hall, he said: "Let me tell you about my friends..."

W. Va. Senator Urges Institute Of Technology

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., said Sunday he would ask the Area Redevelopment Administration to establish an Institute of Technology in West Virginia to be primarily concerned with various aspects of Industrial Research.

Byrd said he based his suggestion on a feasibility study just completed by the U. S. Department of Commerce and added "I am convinced that such a facility could make an important contribution to the economic growth of the state."

Byrd last January asked Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges to institute the feasibility study. Byrd said the objectives of the Institute would be industrial resources research; attraction of new scientific industries; assistance to industries in updating their products and education and training of West Virginians for technical positions in industries.

The Commerce Department, in the study, said a condition for success in modern industry is an active technical program and noted "West Virginia's activity and capability in this important aspect are extremely limited."

The study showed that very few industrial concerns in West Virginia maintain research laboratories and the number of engineers and scientists in the population is far below the national average.

It said a survey compiled in 1960 showed that of 5,400 companies with research laboratories, only 12 were located in West Virginia.

"West Virginia's need is to provide increased employment opportunities and income for its people," the study said. "And this can be done by creating appropriate new enterprises and by the extent to which the State can develop skilled technical manpower and introduce modern technology into the economy."

The study also said the Institute should be organized as an independent non-profit corporation or state agency.

Byrd said the study estimated the initial cost for construction of the Institute at $750,000 with operation costs set at about $500,000 for the first full year of operation.

Byrd said the present and potential industrialization of West Virginia could be mobilized and made to move forward by the establishment of such an Institute.

News From Inside The Statehouse

By THOMAS P. FAZIO

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron would like to get away from his official duties sometime this summer for a week's vacation of fishing and golf—but it doesn't look like he'll get the chance.

Con Hardman, the governor's press secretary, says "one-thousand-and-one things have come up to make it difficult" for Barron to get away for any length of time.

Hardman said Barron managed to take a few days off "here and there" but that he has not had a week off since last August.

The Department of Commerce ran a half-page ad in the June 15 issue of Saturday Evening Post and travel director Robert Bowers says more than 500 out-of-staters have already asked for tourist information about the Mountain State as a result.

Bowers predicts his department will receive over 3,500 queries from the ad in the next few weeks.

A full-page spread in a recent magazine supplement to the New York Sunday Times brought about 3,600 responses, Bowers said.

The Commerce Department received a letter recently from C. E. Bussey, travel representative for American Express Co., Cape Town, South Africa.

Bussey said the response by South Africans to the "Visit USA" campaign initiated by promotional organizations and supplemented by the "99-day" bus excursions has been increasing annually.

"We have specifically received inquiries on West Virginia," he wrote.

"In order to adequately meet these demands and to accurately present the features and enticements of West Virginia," he asked for pamphlets on the state's attractions, plus maps and accommodations.

The sale of West Virginia license plates for vehicles other than passenger cars began today.

The Motor Vehicles Department said the present 1962-63 truck plates will expire July 31.

The deadline for passenger car plates was Sunday. As of Friday, the department had sold 385,000 auto plates.

News From Inside The Statehouse

By THOMAS P. FAZIO

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron would like to get away from his official duties sometime this summer for a week's vacation of fishing and golf—but it doesn't look like he'll get the chance.

Con Hardman, the governor's press secretary, says "one-thousand-and-one things have come up to make it difficult" for Barron to get away for any length of time.

Hardman said Barron managed to take a few days off "here and there" but that he has not had a week off since last August.

The Department of Commerce ran a half-page ad in the June 15 issue of Saturday Evening Post and travel director Robert Bowers says more than 500 out-of-staters have already asked for tourist information about the Mountain State as a result.

Bowers predicts his department will receive over 3,500 queries from the ad in the next few weeks.

A full-page spread in a recent magazine supplement to the New York Sunday Times brought about 3,600 responses, Bowers said.

The Commerce Department received a letter recently from C. E. Bussey, travel representative for American Express Co., Cape Town, South Africa.

Bussey said the response by South Africans to the "Visit USA" campaign initiated by promotional organizations and supplemented by the "99-day" bus excursions has been increasing annually.

"We have specifically received inquiries on West Virginia," he wrote.

"In order to adequately meet these demands and to accurately present the features and enticements of West Virginia," he asked for pamphlets on the state's attractions, plus maps and accommodations.

The sale of West Virginia license plates for vehicles other than passenger cars began today. The Motor Vehicles Department said the present 1962-63 truck plates will expire July 31.

The deadline for passenger car plates was Sunday. As of Friday, the department had sold 385,000 auto plates.

Aaron, Palmer, Lema Deadlock At Cleveland, Playoff Set Today

Three Leaders Post 273s; Boros, Burke, Snead Stroke Back

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Young Tommy Aaron of Gainesville, Ga., birdied the final four holes Sunday to finish in a three-way tie with Arnold Palmer and Tony Lema and set up a playoff for the $22,000 first prize in the $110,000 Cleveland Open golf championship.

The three will fight it out in an 18-hole playoff Monday afternoon at 1:45 EDT.

There were a dozen golfers running at the lead as they forged their way through the final nine holes this heat-blanketed day and all of them threw it away at one time or another except for the 26-year-old Aaron — whose blazing putter carried him into that three-way tie with an 11-under-par total of 273.

Finished Last In Open

Young Tommy — who shot a 91 in the third round of the U.S. Open last Saturday and finished last in the field — made up for it all Sunday afternoon as he rammed home birdie putts of 20, 15, 35 and then a big, mile-long 10-footer on the final hole.

It gave Aaron a final under par 34-32-66.

Then he sat in the clubhouse and sweated it out as Palmer and Lema came charging down the stretch in the day's final group.

They, too, were under par by 11 shots and either of them needed only one birdie over the last two holes to win.

But Palmer, who needed that $22,000 top prize to set an all-time money winning record, and Lema, who had been blazing hot for the last few months, couldn't get it. Palmer came the closest, needing an eight-foot birdie putt on the final green. He missed. Lema, meanwhile, had kept himself in contention on the 17th when he trapped an approach and then rolled home a nine-footer for a saving par.

Palmer shot a 34-34-68, three under par over the 6,681 yard Beechmont Country Club course, and Lema matched that total exactly — as each of them blew those two big shots to the curly haired young man from Georgia.

Three Miss By Stroke

Missing the playoff by just one shot with 10-under-par totals of 274 were U.S. Open champion Julius Boros, Slammin' Sammy Snead and Jack Burke. Boros finished with a 65, which tied the course record; Snead with 67, and Burke with a 68.

Jack Nicklaus, who last week failed to survive the cut for the final two rounds of the Open, birdied the final hole Sunday for a 70 and a 275 which moved him one shot ahead of Art Wall, Jay Hebert, Don January and Gary Player. Wall and Hebert carded 67's, January a 69 and Player a 70.

Dow Finsterwald wound up with a 66 and a 277 which bracketed him with Mason Rudolph, Ed Furgol, Chi Chi Rodriguez and Fred Hawkins.

Aaron has been in one playoff before, losing to Lema at Memphis this year.

REAL COMEBACK — Out for weeks in the early part of the campaign after suffering a broken jaw in the last exhibition game, Rich Rollins, the Twins' third baseman and an All-Star last year in his sophomore season, has been on a hitting spree. Rich now is among the leading hitters in the A.L. and could be a contender for the batting title.

NEW YORK (UP) — Billy Houghton ranks as one of harness racing's all-time great drivers. He won eight consecutive national money-winning championships from 1952 through 1959.

Bosox Blow Up And Yanks Win Pair, 4-2, 11-4

Berra's Homer Wins First; Stuart Error Opens Gates In 2nd

NEW YORK (AP)—A three-run, three-base error by Dick Stuart opened the gates for an 11-4 Yankee victory in the second game as the league-leading New Yorkers swept a doubleheader from the Boston Red Sox Sunday.

Yogi Berra's three-run homer in the first game powered the Yanks to a 4-2 decision, as Whitey Ford won his 12th game with relief help from Hal Reniff.

The Red Sox outthit the Yankees in both games but were sad in the clutch. In the second game the Boston defense fell apart as the Yankees got seven unearned runs.

The Yankees got all their first game runs in the first inning on three hits off starter Bill Monbouquette. They collected only two hits the rest of the game. Reniff relieved Ford in the seventh. They issued nine hits between them.

The Red Sox left 11 men on base in the first five innings of the second game, and 15 in the game. They loaded the bases in the second and fourth without scoring.

Aaron, Palmer, Lema Deadlock At Cleveland, Playoff Set Today

Three Leaders Post 273s; Boros, Burke, Snead Stroke Back

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Young Tommy Aaron of Gainesville, Ga., birdied the final four holes Sunday to finish in a three-way tie with Arnold Palmer and Tony Lema and set up a playoff for the $22,000 first prize in the $110,000 Cleveland Open golf championship.

The three will fight it out in an 18-hole playoff Monday afternoon at 1:45 EDT.

There were a dozen golfers running at the lead as they forged their way through the final nine holes this heat-blanketed day and all of them threw it away at one time or another except for the 26-year-old Aaron — whose blazing putter carried him into that three-way tie with an 11-under-par total of 273.

Finished Last In Open

Young Tommy — who shot a 91 in the third round of the U.S. Open last Saturday and finished last in the field — made up for it all Sunday afternoon as he rammed home birdie putts of 20, 15, 35 and then a big, mile-long 10-footer on the final hole.

It gave Aaron a five under par 34-32-66.

Then he sat in the clubhouse and sweated it out as Palmer and Lema came charging down the stretch in the day's final group.

They, too, were under par by 11 shots and either of them needed only one birdie over the last two holes to win.

But Palmer, who needed that $22,000 top prize to set an all-time money winning record, and Lema, who had been blazing hot for the last few months, couldn't get it. Palmer came the closest, needing an eight-foot birdie putt on the final green. He missed. Lema, meanwhile, had kept himself in contention on the 17th when he trapped an approach and then rolled home a nine-footer for a saving par.

Palmer shot a 34-34-68, three under par over the 6,681 yard Beechmont Country Club course, and Lema matched that total exactly — as each of them blew those two big shots to the curly haired young man from Georgia.

Three Miss By Stroke
Missing the playoff by just one shot with 10-under-par totals of 274 were U.S. Open champion Julius Boros, Slammin' Sammy Snead and Jack Burke. Boros finished with a 65, which tied the course record; Snead with 67, and Burke with a 68.

Jack Nicklaus, who last week failed to survive the cut for the final two rounds of the Open, birdied the final hole Sunday for a 70 and a 275 which moved him one shot ahead of Art Wall, Jay Hebert, Don January and Gary Player. Wall and Hebert carded 67's, January a 69 and Player a 70.

Dow Finsterwald wound up with a 66 and a 277 which bracketed him with Mason Rudolph, Ed Furgol, Chi Chi Rodriguez and Fred Hawkins.

Aaron has been in one playoff before, losing to Lema at Memphis this year.

Bosox Blow Up And Yanks Win Pair, 4-2, 11-4

Berra's Homer Wins First; Stuart Error Opens Gates In 2nd

NEW YORK (AP)—A three-run, three-base error by Dick Stuart opened the gates for an 11-4 Yankee victory in the second game as the league-leading New Yorkers swept a doubleheader from the Boston Red Sox Sunday.

Yogi Berra's three-run homer in the first game powered the Yanks to a 4-2 decision, as Whitey Ford won his 12th game with relief help from Hal Reniff.

The Red Sox outthit the Yankees in both games but were sad in the clutch. In the second game the Boston defense fell apart as the Yankees got seven unearned runs.

The Yankees got all their first game runs in the first inning on three hits off starter Bill Monbouquette. They collected only two hits the rest of the game. Reniff relieved Ford in the seventh. They issued nine hits between them.

The Red Sox left 11 men on base in the first five innings of the second game, and 15 in the game. They loaded the bases in the second and fourth without scoring.

Latimer Bags State Amateur Golf Title

CHEVY CHASE, Md. (AP)—Dick Latimer of Chevy Chase won the Maryland Amateur Golf Championship at Columbia Country Club Sunday with a 2 and 1 decision over Bill Brownrigg of Rockville.

It was the second victory in three years for Latimer for Brownrigg's second loss in the final. He was beaten by Claude Wild of Bethesda in 1957.

Latimer was 5 over par for the 35 holes of the final match, and Brownrigg, who had a disastrous front nine in the afternoon portion, was 8 over par.

REAL COMEBACK — Out for weeks in the early part of the campaign after suffering a broken jaw in the last exhibition game, Rich Rollins, the Twins' third baseman and an All-Star last year in his sophomore season, has been on a hitting spree. Rich now is among the leading hitters in the A.L. and could be a contender for the batting title.

NEW YORK (UP) — Billy Houghton ranks as one of the harness racing's all-time great drivers. He won eight consecutive national money-winning championships from 1952 through 1959.

DELAWARE, Ohio (UPI) — Adios Butler holds the record for the fastest mile paced on a half-mile track. He was clocked in 1:55 3-5 while pacing against the clock at the Delaware track in 1961.

Capture 13 Of 23 Foursomes, Ring Up 19-Point Triumph

Copping 13 out of 23 foursomes, including nine by 3-0 scores, the men's golf team of the Cumberland Country Club extended its home winning streak to 71 matches by defeating the Maplehurst Country Club of Frostburg yesterday by the score of 39½ to 20½ points.

It was Cumberland's 12th victory in 13 matches in the series which started in 1957 and it marked the seventh straight time the Frostburg team had lost here.

Maplehurst took five on the foursome and held the CCC even in five of the tests.

The local team has not lost a home match since late in the 1946 season. Yesterday's match was the first of the season at home for the CCC linksmen who play at Maplehurst July 14 where they dropped their only match of the series last year.

Ninety-two players participated in yesterday's contest.

Tony Cloninger Blanks Dodgers

Fires Three-Hitter As Braves Win, 7-0

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tony Cloninger threw a two-hitter and faced only 28 batters Sunday, pitching the Milwaukee Braves to a 7-0 romp over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Henry Aaron, who has made 16 hits in 30 at bats against the Dodgers this season, slammed his 22nd homer, singled once and drew two walks before grounding out his last time up. Roy McMillan also hit a bases-empty homer for the Braves and drove in another run with a double.

The only hits off Cloninger were a first-inning single by Jim Gilliam and an eighth-inning single by Ron Fairly. Both were wiped out on double plays.

Kansas City Takes Opener In 14th, 3-1

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Bob Saveryne's 12th inning single gave the Baltimore Orioles a 4-3 victory over the Kansas City Athletics in the second game of a doubleheader Sunday after the A's won the opener, 3-1, in 14 innings.

Bill Fischer, who won the first game in relief, was the loser in the second. His record is now 8-4. Saveryne's single came over a drawn-in infield with the bases filled and none out. Stu Miller, who came on in the 11th, won his second game in six decisions.

Doc Edwards' 14th inning single off Dick Hall in the first game gave Kansas City its victory. The hit came with two out and chased home Jerry Lumpe, who had singled and Ed Charles, who had walked.

Starter Ed Rakow went the first 9 1-3 innings for the A's and gave the Orioles their only run in the first inning on two walks and a single by Boog Powell.

Robin Roberts, who allowed two runs in 13 1-3 innings, was charged with his eighth loss against six victories.

Bucs Blank Mets, 3-0, Sweep Set

Friend, McBean Allow Three Hits

FRIEND retired after eight innings PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob Friend and Al McBean combined for a three-hit 3-0 shutout of the New York Mets Sunday and gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a sweep of the three-game series. Friend got the victory, his 10th.

The Pirates scored in the fourth inning off starter Tracy Stallard on singles by Roberto Clemente and Jerry Lynch and a sacrifice fly by Smokey Burgess.

They added two more in the eighth on Clemente's triple, two errors by Mets second baseman Rod Kanehl on the same play and Bob Bailey's single.

Friend retired after eight innings because of the heat and humidity.

CCC Golfers Whip Maplehurst For 71st Straight Win At Home

Capture 13 Of 23 Foursomes, Ring Up 19-Point Triumph

Copping 13 out of 23 foursomes, including nine by 3-0 scores, the men's golf team of the Cumberland Country Club extended its home winning streak to 71 matches by defeating the Maplehurst Country Club of Frostburg yesterday by the score of 39½ to 20½ points.

It was Cumberland's 12th victory in 13 matches in the series which started in 1957 and it marked the seventh straight time the Frostburg team had lost here.

Maplehurst took five on the foursome and held the CCC even in five of the tests.

The local team has not lost a home match since late in the 1946 season. Yesterday's match was the first of the season at home for the CCC linksmen who play at Maplehurst July 14 where they dropped their only match of the series last year.

Ninety-two players participated in yesterday's contest.

Jim Clark Wins Race In France

RHEIMS, France (UPI) — Jim Clark drove his sleek Lotus racer to victory Sunday in the French formula one Grand Prix and took an almost unbeatable lead for the 1963 world driver's championship.

South African Tony Maggs was second in another British car, a Cooper Climax V-8, a minute behind. Third was Graham Hill, the defending driving champion, in his BRM V-8.

Clark now has 27 points for three victories in the 1963 season in which the best five placings are counted. Hill could still catch up, but Clark's last two performances make that appear unlikely.

The young Scot now has won this and the Dutch races in such commanding fashion—leading from start to finish while others fought for lesser places—that no one expects him to lose his driving lead.

Rosewall Cops Pro Net Title

Conquers Laver In 68 Minutes

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI)—Ken Rosewall Sunday continued his mastery over fellow Australian Rod Laver to win the singles title in the U.S. pro tennis championships. Rosewall conquered Laver in 68 minutes, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

On their recent pro playoff tour, Rosewall defeated Laver, 14 matches to four, to reign as the pro champion.

In winning this grass-court event, Rosewall earned $1,400 net money. Laver, as the runner up, collected $1,100.

The crowd of about 5,000 applauded Rosewall's artistry in his first professional appearance here in four years.

The crowd got more action for its money in the doubles. Rosewall, teaming with Laver, won that title, too, in a 7-5, 10-8, 7-5 victory over Butch Buchholz and Alex Olmedo. The Rosewall-Laver duo split $800.

Quarter-Finals Set For Today At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—Chuck McKinley and Frank Froehling of San Antonio, Tex., America's sole survivors in the men's singles, swing action into the quarter-finals at Wimbledon Monday against tough opponents.

McKinley, the top-ranked player in the United States and seeded fourth at Wimbledon, meets Bobby Wilson of Britain and Froehling, the American No. 2, takes on Fred Stolle of Australia.

In the other men's quarter-finals matches, top-seeded and favorite Roy Emerson of Australia plays Willie Bungert of Germany and second-seeded Manuel Santana of Spain takes on Christian Kuhnke of Germany.

Women's play on Monday is limited to doubles action with the singles resuming on Tuesday. The United States still has three women representatives in singles. They are Darlene Hard and Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif., and Donna Floyd Faies of Arlington, Va.

McAuliffe's Homer Beats Angels, 6-5

DETROIT (AP)—Dick McAuliffe's homer leading off the ninth inning capped a Detroit Tiger comeback and lifted them to a 6-5 victory over the Los Angeles Angels Sunday.

The Tigers, behind 4-0 by the fourth inning, battled back with three homers. Billy Bruton's tied it 5-5 in the sixth. Norm Cash hit a two-run homer for Detroit's first runs in the bottom of the fourth.

The Angels' Leon Wagner, bidding for the triple crown of batting, had two more hits including a homer, drove in three runs and made two leaping catches against the left field fence.

Wagner went into the game as the American League batting leader and lifted his average to .351. The homer was his 19th and the three RBIs raised his total to 57.

and his Icelandic wife will leave
Moscow Monday on a delayed trip

British authorities have given the

Swim Program Set For County School Children

First Classes Scheduled Today

Several hundred Allegany County school children will again receive free swimming instruction this summer through the cooperation of the local Red Cross chapter and Allegany County Board of Education.

Robert E. Pence, county supervisor of physical education and water safety chairman for Red Cross, said classes will begin today at 10 a. m. and continue through August 9.

Since the City Recreation Department, the YMCA, Country Club and Shrine Club pools all teach swimming to local residents, Mr. Pence's program concentrates on the other sections of the county.

Each group is organized through a school PTA committee and instruction is provided for a continuous two-week daily period. Most of the students are beginners and range from ages 8 to 11 years, although each group has some intermediate and advanced swimmers.

The schedule includes July 1-12, LaVale School at Celanese, 40 students; July 8-19, Midland School at Frostburg, 50 students; July 15-26, Mt. Savage School at Frostburg, 30 students; Corrigansville School at Celanese, 50 students; July 29-August 9, LaVale School, Celanese, 40 students; Beall Elementary at Frostburg, 50 students; Hill Street School, Frostburg, 30 students, and Thomas Pullen School, Frostburg, 30 students.

Certified Red Cross instructors who will teach the classes are Mrs. Judy Briner, Mrs. Ina Lee Donius, Miss Eileen Llewellyn, Mrs. Martha Strickland and Mr. Pence. They will be assisted by mothers from PTA groups, Girl Scout volunteers and others.

U.S. Inspector Cites Progress Of Local Dairies

The U. S. Public Health Service began a survey of county dairies and dairy farms last week and Ward Barstow, certified U. S. milk inspector, noted much progress has been made in the county since the last inspection. U. S. inspections are conducted every two years.

Mr. Barstow particularly cited the number of capital improvements at the local dairies. He was accompanied on the inspection tour by J. Stanley Ritchie, county milk sanitarian.

There are 275 dairy farms in the county that ship milk to dairy plants. These farms are inspected at least twice a year by the county sanitarians and the plants also are inspected regularly.

Summer Events Listed For Three Md. Counties

The Tourist Division of the Maryland Department of Economic Development has published a calendar of events which will occur in the state in the next three months and only one activity is listed for Cumberland.

FATHER EWALD

Former Area Pastor Dies In Baltimore

Rev. Charles Francis Ewald 77, former assistant pastor at St. Philomena Catholic Church, Rowlesburg, died yesterday at Jenkins Memorial Hospital, 1000 South Caton Avenue, Baltimore, where he has resided since 1951.

Father Ewald was ordained to the priesthood March 25, 1914, in Belmont, N. C., by Most Rev. Leo Haid, OSB. His other assignments included assistant pastorship at Wytheville, Va., Princeton and Hinton, W. Va., and a teaching assignment at St. Edwards College, Huntington, W. Va.

In 1940, Father Ewald retired because of ill health and resided here with his sister, Mrs. Minnie Maloney, Prince George Street, until entering the Baltimore hospital.

Born in Wytheville February 28, 1886, he was a son of the late Stephen F. Augusta (Reich) Ewald.

Besides Mrs. Maloney he is survived by another sister, Mrs. Charles D. Brown, Mobile, Ala., and a number of nieces and nephews.

The body will be brought to the Scarpelli Funeral Home.

County Will Get Grazing Privileges

Allegany County is one of 18 counties in the state provided grazing and haying privileges on diverted crop land by the Department of Agriculture, according to Rep. Richard E. Lankford, 5th District Congressman.

Farmers in these counties will have grazing and hay privileges on conservation reserved land and on feed grain and wheat stabilization diverted acres. However, farmers must obtain approval from the County ASC Committee before grazing on these lands.

The action reflects the shortage of forage pasture and feed supplies because of the continuous drought in recent months and severe freezing last winter.
